Hot Springs High School

THIS WAS THE YEAR THAT . . . the Israeli crisis erupted, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., was assassinated in Memphis, Great Britain devalued the pound and France threatened the gold market, President Johnson decided against seeking renomination, the first successful heart transplant was made, fighting continued in Viet Nam and North Korea captured the PUEBLO, Arkansas executives considered a bid on the London Bridge, construction finally began on Highway 7 South, and the Hot Springs High School building produced its last Senior Class.

Come explore an intriguing world —

a world brimming with incredible adventures, elusive truths, and infinite beauty;
a world revealing intense joys and sorrows, intoxicating knowledge, and inexhaustible experiences.

Your entrance into this world of wonder is attainable with CURIOSITY.

Curiosity is the intense desire to search for answers to life's questions.

It is the poetic yearning to find the mystic pot of gold at the rainbow's end.
It is the desire to behold a wee Irish leprechaun.
It is the half-acknowledged wish to know one's future.
It is the wonderment a child finds in a seashell.
It is the anticipation of a young girl receiving a gift from a secret friend.

Curiosity leads one to look at the world in a new light, to ask questions, to search for new adventures, to seek better solutions, and to find new answers.

The Enigma of IDENTITY

Who am I?
Am I a product of my society,
a stereotyped image of a teen?
What do I stand for,
or do I stand for anything?
Am I like the senseless grain of sand beside the sea — unchanging and unfeeling — merely trampled by feet and beaten by waves, or Am I like an impressionable mass of clay being continually remolded?
Do I present any real and material image, or do I live as a shadow, meek and unsubstantial?
Am I becoming nothing more than a series of numbers, losing any individuality I once possessed?
Am I a reflection of someone else,
a carbon copy of another?
Who will I be?

Am I known by my moods — contemplative? jubilant?

Join the crowd — be an individual!

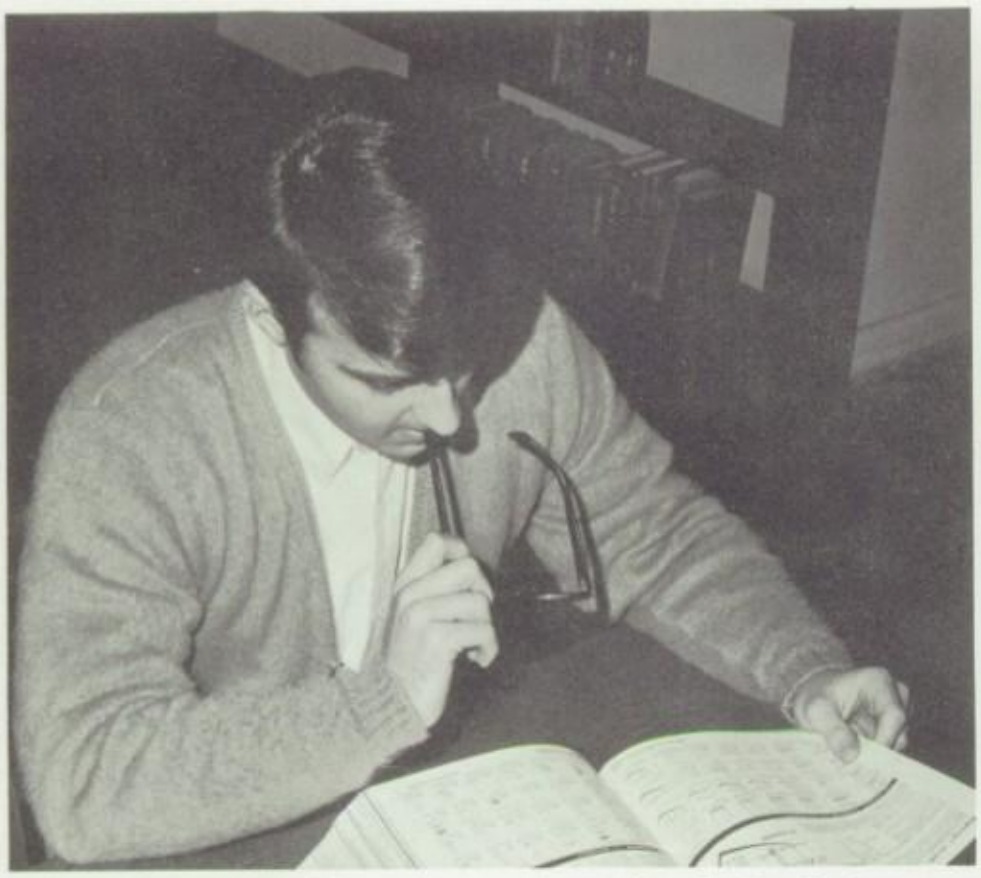
What is my purpose in life?

Am I more than a number?

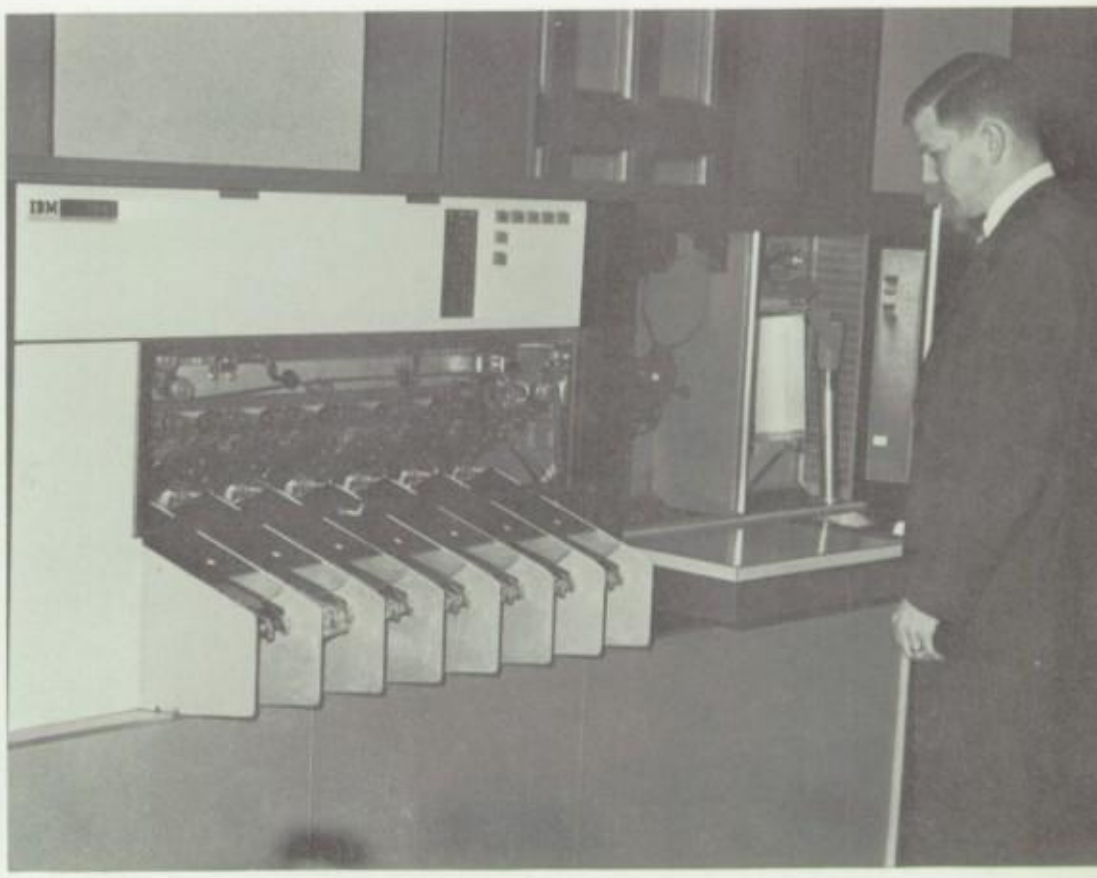
Am I a shadow?

Is knowledge the result of meditation?

Is knowledge the result of experimentation?



What is the source of wisdom? Study?



Can man's intellectual power be replaced?

The Complexity of KNOWLEDGE

What is true learning?
Is it the ability to perform great feats of intellectual power, conversing with Socrates, Shelley, Einstein; or is it the ability to know people, their fears, hopes, admirations, thoughts?
Is knowledge gained by study, or does it emerge as the individual becomes aware of its presence?
To survive in this society, do I have to be "educated," or can I live on the intellectual fringes of our culture, like the guitar-strummin' hillbilly, and still be secure?
What is knowledge the result of — many hours spent in studying?
practical experiences?
self-inquiry and meditation?
What do I need to know?

The Question of a SUPREME BEING

What is my God?
What do I worship —
a God of mercy who established this whirling world in its universe? or money? power? popularity?
Is there just one true religion, or are all justified?
Is God actually "dead," or is he "dead" for those who have killed
Him in themselves?
Is God a relevant force in our society, or a remnant of our superstitious past?
How can I know my God — through earnest prayer? or through perception of small acts of love:
a little boy's broken kite repaired, a box of cookies personally delivered to the "old folks' home," a couple's warm handclasp?
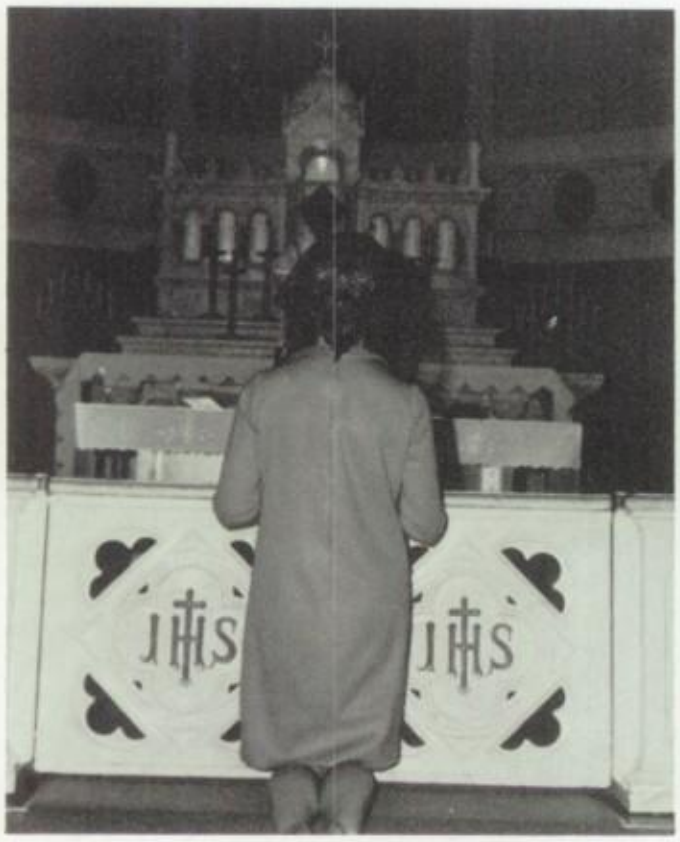
Where is He?

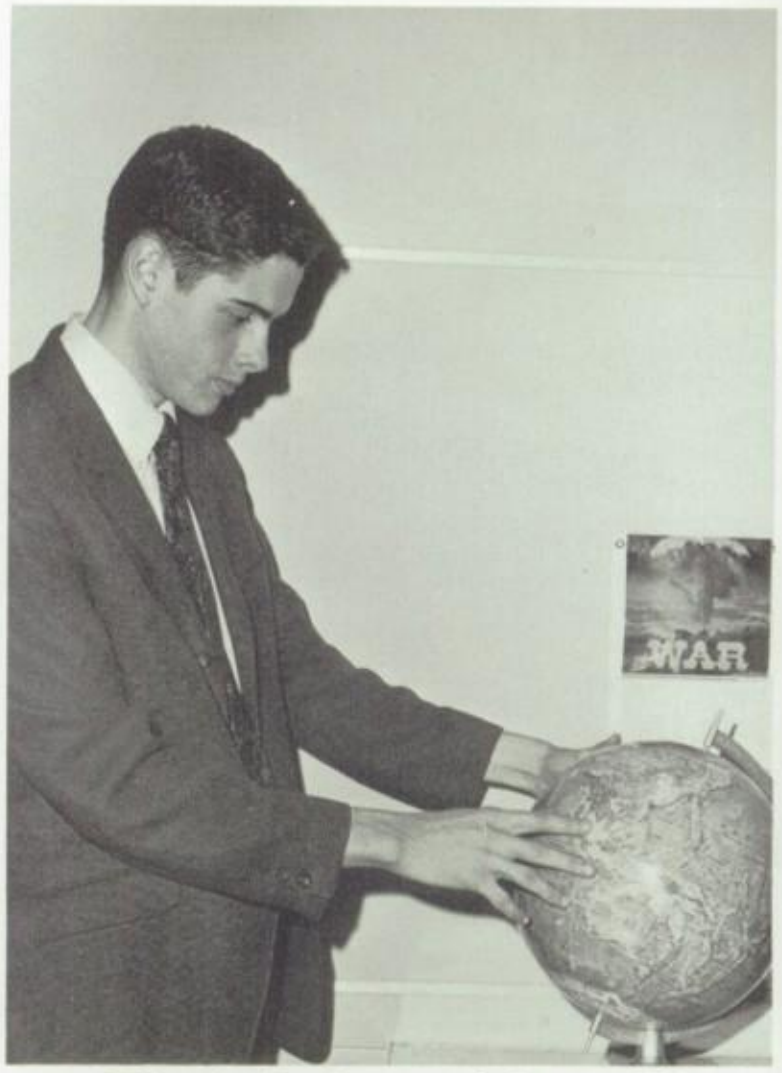
Thy will, my will?



Am I my brother's keeper?

What is my cross to bear?

What are the bounds of the church's jurisdiction?



What is the future of the world?

Am I a puppet or the master of my own fate?

Love — when — for whom?

Do I drift like the clouds?

Which way?

The Obscurity of DESTINATION

Where am I going?
What does the future hold — ultimate peace or bleak co-existence with a hostile power?
What will I make of my life — a work of art, perfect in execution, or a tumbleweed existence, aimlessly drifting with the dry and dusty wind?
What is my goal,
or do I even have one?
Will the world continue,
or will the winds of war blow dark, billowing mushroom clouds to rain death and destruction?
Where will next year find me — in a new school?
in college?
in a home of my own?
at work?
Is there a life after death,
or is this life the alpha and omega?
Why am I going?

Is pleasure found in works of art?

. . . in classrooms?

The Pursuit of PLEASURE

What is fun?
Is it the delightful pain of physical exertion, or the literary satisfaction of strolling with Thoreau around Walden Pond?
Is it found running barefoot through a violet-laced field?
Is it the gentle calm experienced while fishing on a still, summer morn?
Is it the silly merriment of skipping down the middle of Central Avenue at three o'clock in the morning?
Is it found in giving of myself or obtained by purely monetary means?
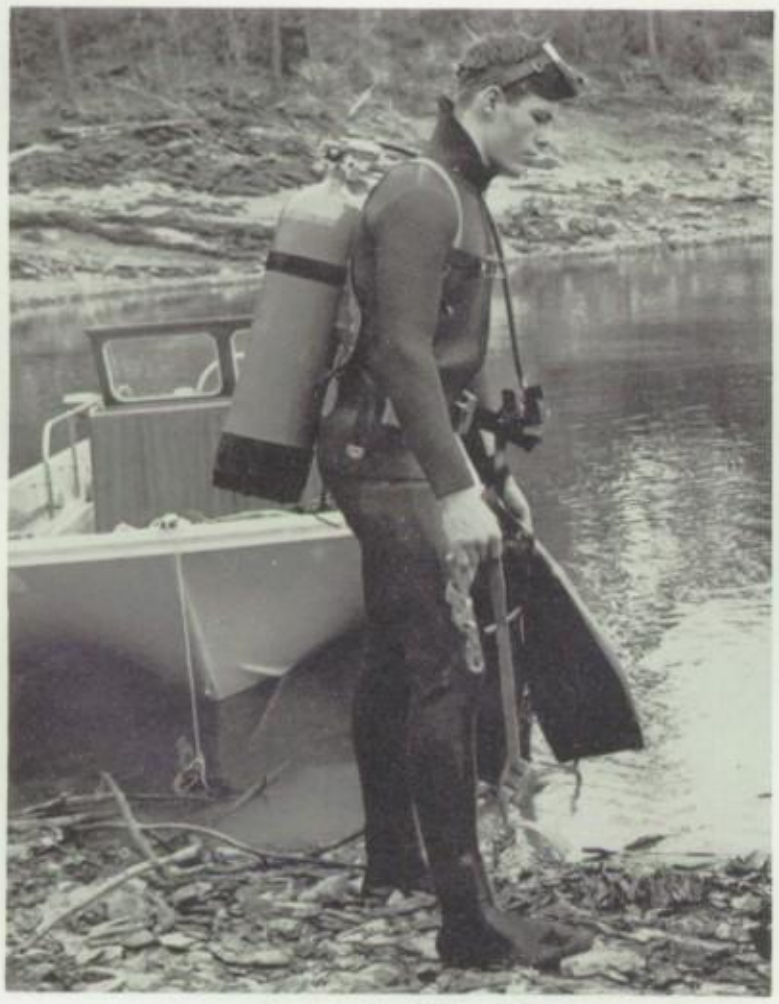
Is fun impossible for some?
Is it necessary to "work" at having fun?
How do I have fun?



. . . in hobbies?

. . . in doing for others?

. . . in joviality?

Teacher, friend, citizen—Mr. George Caristianos

A good teacher is a well-cut diamond. He is bright, to attract his students' interests; he is of strong constitution, to command their respect; he has a polished understanding of people; and he has many sides to his nature — teacher, friend, adviser. Mr. George Caristianos is such a gem in HSHS.

As head teacher at Lee, Mr. Caristianos commands the respect of students and faculty. Under his sponsorship the DECA Club has grown in size and importance.

As a citizen, Mr. Caristianos is an active member of the Oaklawn Lions Club and chairman of the Recreation for Hot Springs Committee.

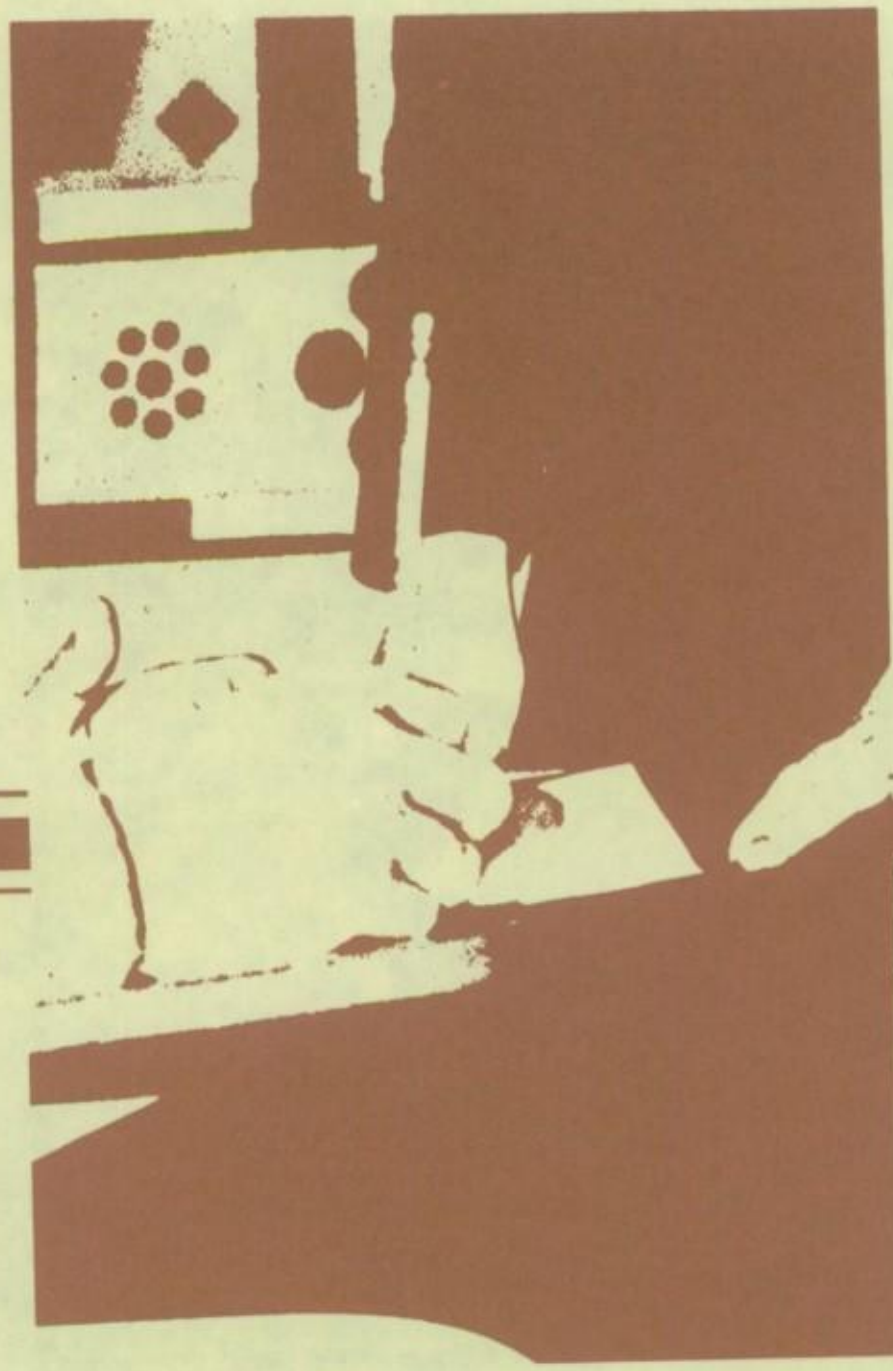
Respected teacher, trusted friend, admirable citizen — because he is all these things, we dedicate the 1968 OLD GOLD BOOK to Mr. George Caristianos.

Athletically-inclined, Mr. Caristianos recognizes the importance of a healthy mind and body.

GEORGE CARISTIANOS

As master of ceremonies at the HSEA-CTA banquet, Mr. Caristianos presides with dignity and humor.

ENLIGHTENMENT



Knowledge is the result of

uriosity . . .

The classroom is the result of knowledge, and knowledge is the result of curiosity — curiosity about what has gone before in the past, what is happening now in the present, and what is to come in the future. The classroom is a vast storehouse of workable knowledge, laboratory experimentation, and creative ability. Its only confinement is the boundary of each student's imagination and curiosity, his will to push his way forward into a better, more satisfying awareness of the world around him.

Curiosity is one of the permanent and certain characteristics of a vigorous mind.

— SAMUEL JOHNSON

Library uses $5,000 to increase books to 9000

LIBRARY ASSISTANT Cora Magby uses the card catalogue to find a book quickly.

Few in number are the places in today's society where peace prevails, for in this fast-changing, highly-automated world, the urge for expansion and fast-paced activity in the name of progress have caused the destruction of such havens. Yet in the land of Troy, one such tranquil isle still exists; to insiders, it is known as the HSHS Library. Amidst the tumult of Trojan activity, the library has managed to maintain its atmosphere of quiet solitude.

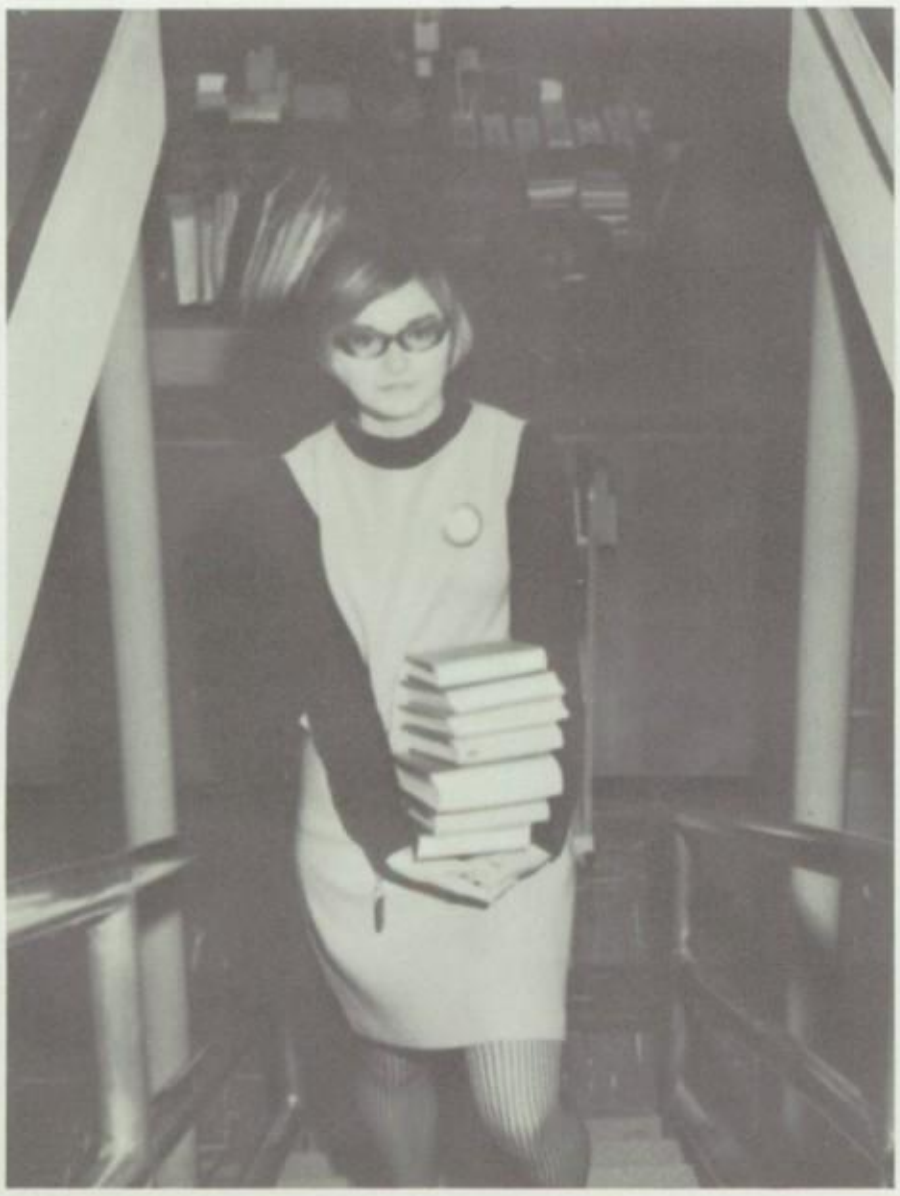
Few students recognize or appreciate the business aspect of the smoothly-running library. This year, for example, the volume of books rose from 7000 to 9000. A total of $5000 was spent to improve and supplement the library's reading material.

This reading material is as widely diversified as all the readers. Books range from the highly informative reference books used for research themes to the light romantic novel read for pleasure. The library is constantly expanding to meet the needs of both students and teachers.

For people needing additional information, the Garland-Montgomery Regional Library is but a few blocks away. Two of its most recent innovations are a photostatic copier and a charge-plate stamping device at the check-out desk.

Many students, especially seniors, are building home libraries, filling their shelves with books as varied as Chaucer's Canterbury Tales, Shakespeare's Hamlet, Golding's Lord of the Flies, and Schulz's Hey, Peanuts!

EXCELLENT RESEARCH MATERIAL in the library makes senior themes a challenge instead of a chore.



TOTING A HEAVY LOAD, Robin Nix works as library page at Garland-Montgomery Regional Library.

JUNIOR CONNIE MOORE searches through the vertical file for more information for a special report.

English students ponder

A mock courtroom trial to determine the innocence or guilt of the visitor in The Secret Sharer, and entries in the Freedom's Challenge Contest, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, were innovations in the English department this year; but the old stand-bys still prevailed. Juniors and seniors were terrified by the thought of up-coming themes, while sophomores were becoming oriented to high school English with diagrams, conjugations, Julius Caesar, and The King and I.

Unprecedented interest in writing was evidenced by the enthusiastic enrollment for creative writing. Two large classes in the twelfth grade created their own ballads, sonnets, essays, and short stories.

All students of English examined techniques and ideas. They were intrigued by archetypes, transcendentalism, and existentialism. Creative art, arising from the study of literature, splashed its colors on classroom walls and bulletin boards. Students explored the realms of American and English literature as they read and pondered the words of such literary giants as Mark Twain, Chaucer, Sophocles, and Shakespeare.

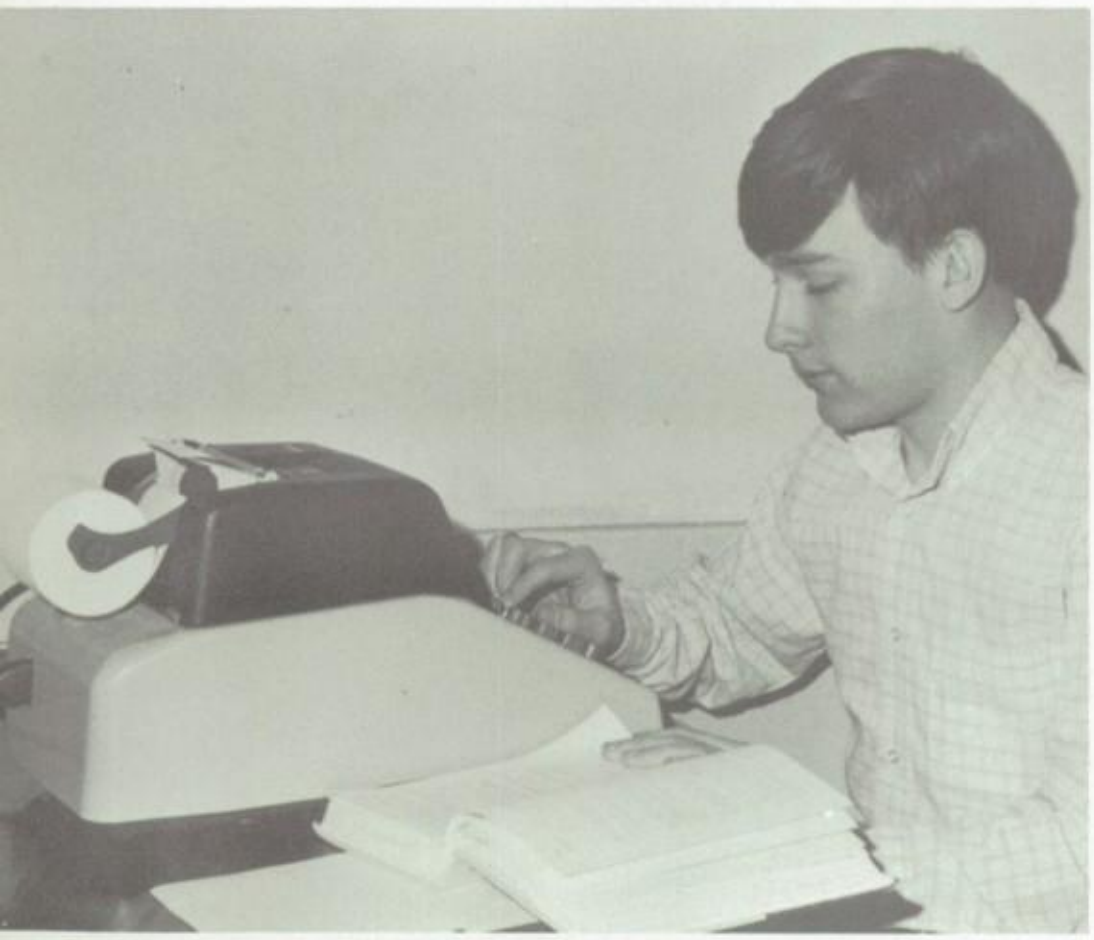
Students find many practical uses for math



USING THE CALCULATOR helps Shelley Tacket find answers to difficult problems encountered in math class.

Numbers compose the basis for all mathematical systems; but for students at Hot Springs High, numbers are only part of the often involved and sometimes frustrating math courses. Besides studying numbers, students delve deeply into variables, trigonometric functions, and calculus proofs.

This year teachers emphasized the practical use of math. During the fall semester, students in Algebra II classes visited Arkansas First National Bank for their first view of a data processing computer; in the spring a guest speaker from Christian Brothers College discussed the computer's uses and operation. Calculus students caught an insight into the complicated world of income tax forms, while the applied math students learned how to use math in job situations.

For increased efficiency, the department purchased many new materials. A calculator was frequently used by energetic students. Acquisition of numerous books helped to bring the mathematical reference material up to date. Aiding the teaching process were overhead projectors and films.

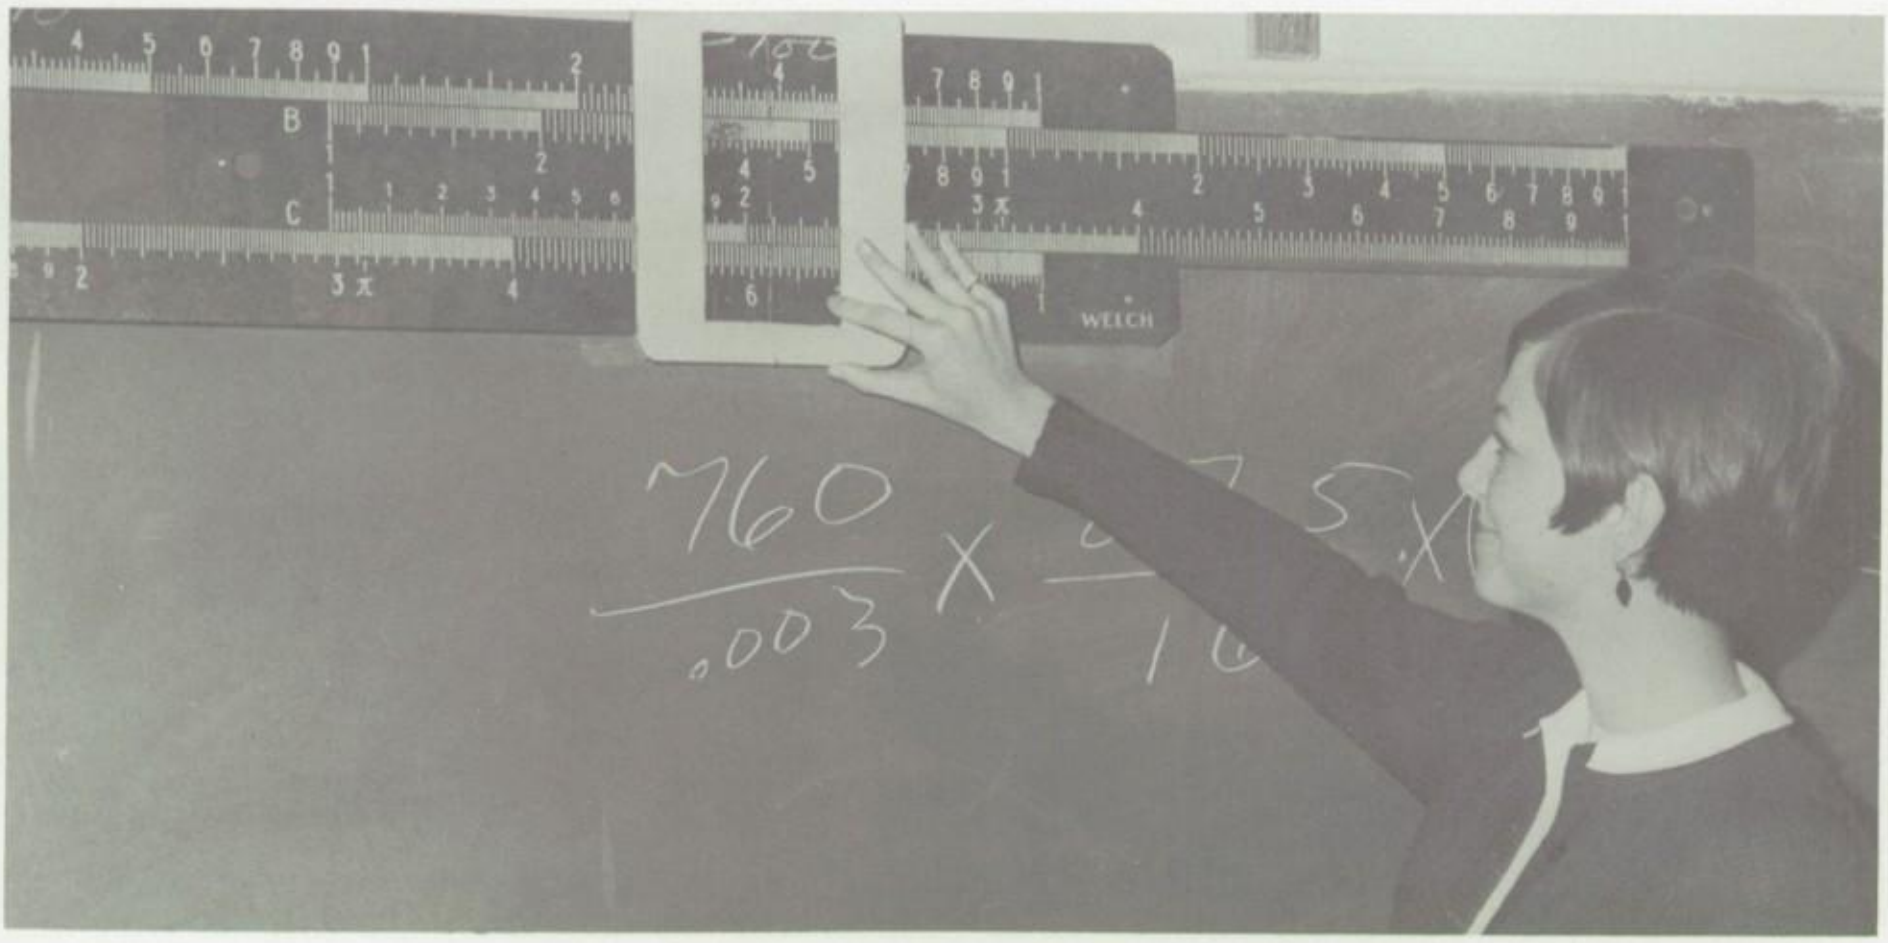
PENNY GREEN DEMONSTRATES the usefulness of the slide rule for problems involving trigonometry.



Science students probe the unknown for facts

Today's world, as well as tomorrow's, is centered around science.

With a microscopic view of plants and animals in biology class, a student gets the inside story. The whole truth is revealed by dissecting animal specimens and painstakingly examining plant cells.

Laboratory experiments and computed problems reveal the unknown substances in chemistry. Chemistry also displays how substances act and how they are changed under varying conditions.

In physics, students learn not only the basic physical principles, but also the application of these principles in problems and in laboratory experiments. Delving deeply brings forth the how and the why of the nonliving.

By probing the unknown of science, one sees fantasy become reality.

PRECISE MEASUREMENTS by Corky Clinton and Debbie Bailey assure the success of their experiments in chemistry.

JUNIORS Patsy Curll, Julie Connelly, Terry Fogle, and Joe Bonnette don the strange apparel necessary to safety in experiments.

MOUTH TO MOUTH RESUSCITATION, a useful lifesaving procedure, is being learned by the health class under the supervision of Mrs. Buchanan, school nurse.

Social sciences study past and present world

Astounding knowledge of a new world is offered by the social studies as they reveal the puzzling past, the stirring world of today, and the mystical future.

Is it generally known that John Tyler had fifteen children? that Henry McCarty was really Billy the Kid? or that Franklin D. Roosevelt was the last President to visit Hot Springs? American history offered these among other interesting facts. Students also studied how their land was discovered, explored, and built.

The newest addition to the social studies division was the psychology class, in which students investigated the reasons why people act, think, and feel as they do. Students also applied psychology to education by examining the relationship of learning to a person's intelligence, interest, ability, and motivation.

Finding major land areas of the world and studying land forms composed the majority content of world geography. Students also classified people and cultures.

In world history classes, students traveled to diverse points of the earth through films and slides.

French department adds third-year course

EIFFEL TOWER creates the proper atmosphere for a French reading given by Ronnie Wray.

An innovation in French classes this year was the addition of a class for third-year students. Having previously completed two years of study, these students were ready for more difficult passages and translations. Because of their advanced experience, they had a greater opportunity for self-expression, the chance to broaden their scope of knowledge and perhaps to go on to major in this field of select speech.

Students in all French classes met for both cultural and social improvement. They learned about French customs and the French way of life, which differ so much from their own. One good example of these differences is that French students do not have weekends free. Instead, they are out of classes on Thursdays and Sundays.

First-year students concentrated on grammar and vocabulary. They laid firm foundations with basic phrases, words, and conjugations.

The second-year students learned idioms of speech, history, and conversation. Their studies were aided by French tapes, recordings, and magazines.

FRENCH LIBRARY helps first-year students Marsha Watkins, Karen Brewster, and Pat Crawford increase their beginning proficiency in understanding the French language.

SPANISH STUDENTS enliven the Spanish atmosphere with a skit entitled "Los Cuatro Cantantes de Guadalajara," or "The Four Singers of Guadalajara."

Romantic Spanish—language of the South

Romantic is the appropriate adjective to describe the Spanish language. It reached this continent by means of daring conquerors and adventurous explorers.

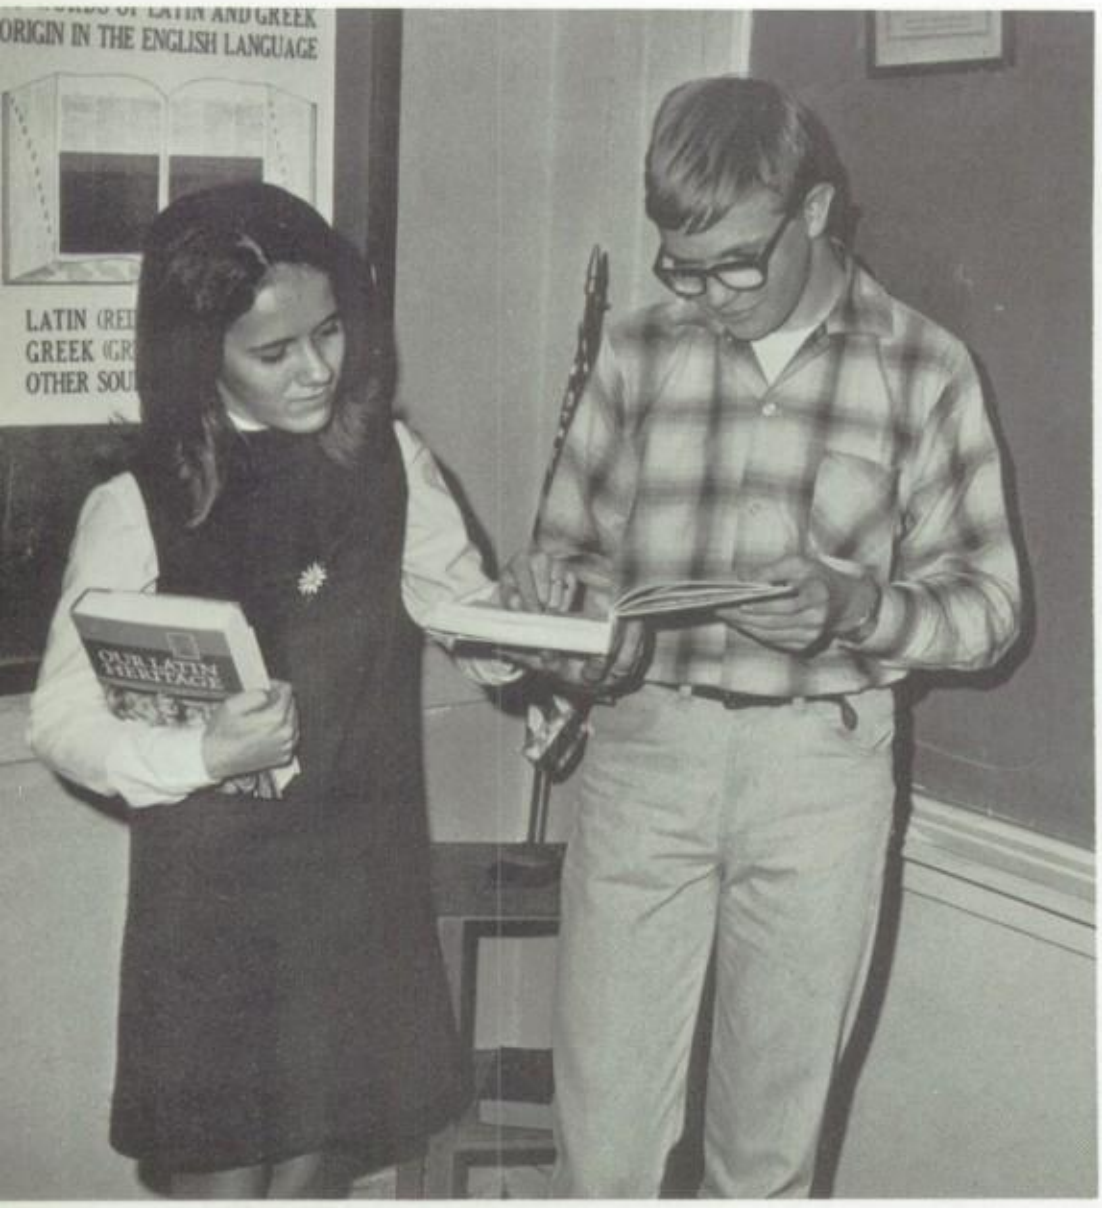
While learning this language, students also studied the Spanish way of life. Vicariously they joined colorfully clad folk dancers enjoying the bolero, fandago, and saraband to the accompaniment of a guitar, from which comes Spain's most popular music. For recreation, they watched the Spanish play soccer, ski, and enjoy what is perhaps Spain's best-known spectacle, bullfighting.

In class, students listened to tapes for diction and viewed films to learn how the authentic Spanish family lives.

Spanish cartoons and a Spanish circus on the bulletin board made unusual added attractions.

For entertainment, there were comic books and other material, such as the story of "El Gato en el Sombrero," or "The Cat in the Hat."

MRS. LEOPPARD, practice teacher for Mr. Walker, exposes John Wright to Spanish culture.



DEBBIE CURLL POINTS OUT to Lewis Beam one of the many new procedures of learning an old language.

Latin tells heroic tales of adventure, grandeur

Although Latin is universally known as a dead language, it is really a universal language. Because Latin is not spoken internationally, people today seem to take its importance much too lightly. They seem to forget that without Latin they themselves might not have any language at all. Many of the modern languages, including French and Spanish as well as many English words, trace their histories to this ancient beginning.

Latin offers to the student the glory of ancient Rome, the majesty of gods and goddesses, and heroic tales of adventure and grandeur. Here, available to any student and ready to whisk him away at a moment's notice, is a magic carpet into the past.

First-year students learned the fundamentals of vocabulary, grammar, syntax, declensions, conjugations, and derivatives. Second-year students studied stories of Greek and Roman mythology and history, such as the twelve labors of Hercules and Caesar's Gallic Wars. Third-year students read the classics — essays and orations of Cicero, along with the poetry of Virgil and Ovid.

In addition to reading ancient writing, students learned about Roman history and culture.

Home economics—the basis for everyday living

Visiting a furniture store, being instructed in child care, listening to the school nurse, and learning how to select proper clothes — these activities along with others help to prepare the girls of today to be the mothers and homemakers of tomorrow.

Drama students do well at speech tournament

Excitement, awareness, and originality prevailed in the drama department.

Speech classes were enlivened by the special element of competition provided by the Invitational Speech Tournament on February 3 at Henderson State College.

Drama classes learned the history of the theatre in all forms. With that background, their work in Thespian productions was more meaningful and more effective.

The stagecraft class in their white overalls were quite a busy group. When not working on productions of the drama department, they repaired and completed costumes and props for the department in the new school.

Halls 'are alive with the sound of music'

The sound of music was present at all times during the year, harmonious sounds coming from the Hot Springs Trojan Band and the Trojan Chorus.

In the field house daily during first period, the band practiced for football shows, contests, and concerts. Third period was dedicated to the work of the stage band, pep band, and German Band. Individuals used their music education for a good purpose when they placed nine members and twelve alternates in the All-State Band. Band Variety Show gave members another chance to display their talents.

Music ringing through the halls of the main building at all hours of the day came from the chorus classes. Thanksgiving and Christmas were times for special music from the various choral groups on school or civic programs. Springtime was the cue for chorus festivals to begin. A colorful new group to compete in these contests was the Madrigal Singers in their costumes of earlier days. Trojan Chorus now comprises the Troubadours, Toreadors, Traveling Chorus, Madrigal Singers, and several hundred other voices.

A school without music would be dull indeed. The two musical divisions of instrumental and vocal music enrich the cultural life of the school.

Questionnaire improves business curricula

Today's business world is making greater demand on its people. As more people take their places among the ranks of the working class, the need for business education has also grown by leaps and bounds.

The various business courses taught covered typing shorthand, bookkeeping, and office practice. The latest methods of developing these skills were used. For example, the shorthand classes boasted the use of the Steno Trainer, a modern device which allowed students to take dictation simultaneously but at different speeds.

Business classes, realizing the importance of better training, devised and mailed a questionnaire to business establishments throughout the city. The purpose of this questionnaire was to learn what revision the business education curricula needed in order to better train students for future employment.

The motto of the business classes seemed to be "Look toward the future, but work for the present."

GIRLS IN SHORTHAND CLASS test their abilities in transcribing.

DE and DO classes enter business world today

Students in distributive education and diversified occupation classes learn to handle themselves in the business world. By attending classes half a day and working the other half, the DE and DO students acquire an education as well as experience for future work.

Students in DE learn how to be efficient in their jobs, which consist mainly of selling goods and public service jobs. DO students learn skills which are usually used in life vocations.

In the classroom the DE and DO students receive hints which are helpful in their jobs. Through the use of a tape recorder, the DE students practice correct sales procedure.

This year two new businesses, Lauray's Jewelers and Arkansas First National Bank, were training stations for DE students.

Students learn mechanical repair and design

MECHANICAL DRAWING STUDENTS Marsha McLarty and Bill McBride strive for accuracy in design.

"Do-it-yourself." These three words are often spoken but seldom applied – except in home mechanics. In this course, students are taught practical methods of home repair; anything from faulty electrical equipment to leaky faucets may fall into this category. In today's business-minded, professionalized world, these students learn simple procedures which will save time and money. Home mechanics trains a student to be self-reliant and ready in case of an emergency.

Mechanical drawing students discover the intricate art of design. Imagination and concentration are the essentials of blueprinting anything from colonial-type mansions to ultramodern kitchen cabinets. Here T-squares, assorted scales, and triangles have special meaning. Students can soon perceive the plans of a house out of a conglomeration of lines and angles.

PRECISION NECESSARY in mechanical drawing is facilitated for Robbie Meeks and Joe Atchley by a variety of instruments.

Auto mechanics service complicated machinery

The automobile mechanic is often taken for granted. He has one of the most complicated but least recognized jobs in the world – that of keeping an engine running. Few people realize or appreciate his years of training.

For three hours a day, five days a week, the auto mechanics class met this year at the Gorge. Here students learned the fundamentals of the highly-complicated modern gasoline engine, and acquired the skills needed to keep such engines operating smoothly.

KEEPING THE BUSES in tip-top shape is only one of the duties of Bruce Hood, Don Oliver, and Wade Hall.

EACH MORNING the auto mechanics boys board the school bus for the Gorge.

Dance gives PE students chance for originality

With the present emphasis on physical fitness, the physical education department has become increasingly important. Classes were given tests in the fall to measure physical ability; and in the spring, after a year of strenuous physical activity, they were retested.

The feminine division of the department went creative in the fall when the girls attempted original dances. The results were amazing and often amusing. Later in the year the girls were introduced to Ping-Pong, shuffleboard, softball, and volleyball.

Boys' PE classes competed among themselves in football, basketball, softball, and wrestling. Sportsmanship was emphasized in all groups. Healthy bodies and attitudes were the result of a year of well-directed exercise.

Driving simulator adds interest to Driver Ed

The automobile is today's most common mode of transportation.

Unless one learns the correct procedure for operating this modern mechanical wonder, tragic events are the result for both the driver and pedestrians. Driver education seeks to prevent these tragic disasters by developing good driving habits in the drivers of today and tomorrow.

From textbooks the students learned proper operation of a car, laws which must be obeyed, and everyday courteous rules to be followed. After six weeks of intensive "book studying," the students were ready to face the perils of actual driving.

At some time during the course, the driver education students were introduced to the Arkansas State Police-owned driver simulator trailer. This trailer was equipped with simulated driving controls. The student "drove" through actual driving situations. At the end of the film, the mistakes were totaled. Through the variation in scores from day to day, the progress of the student was determined.

After completing the driver education course, the student qualified as a well-trained driver.

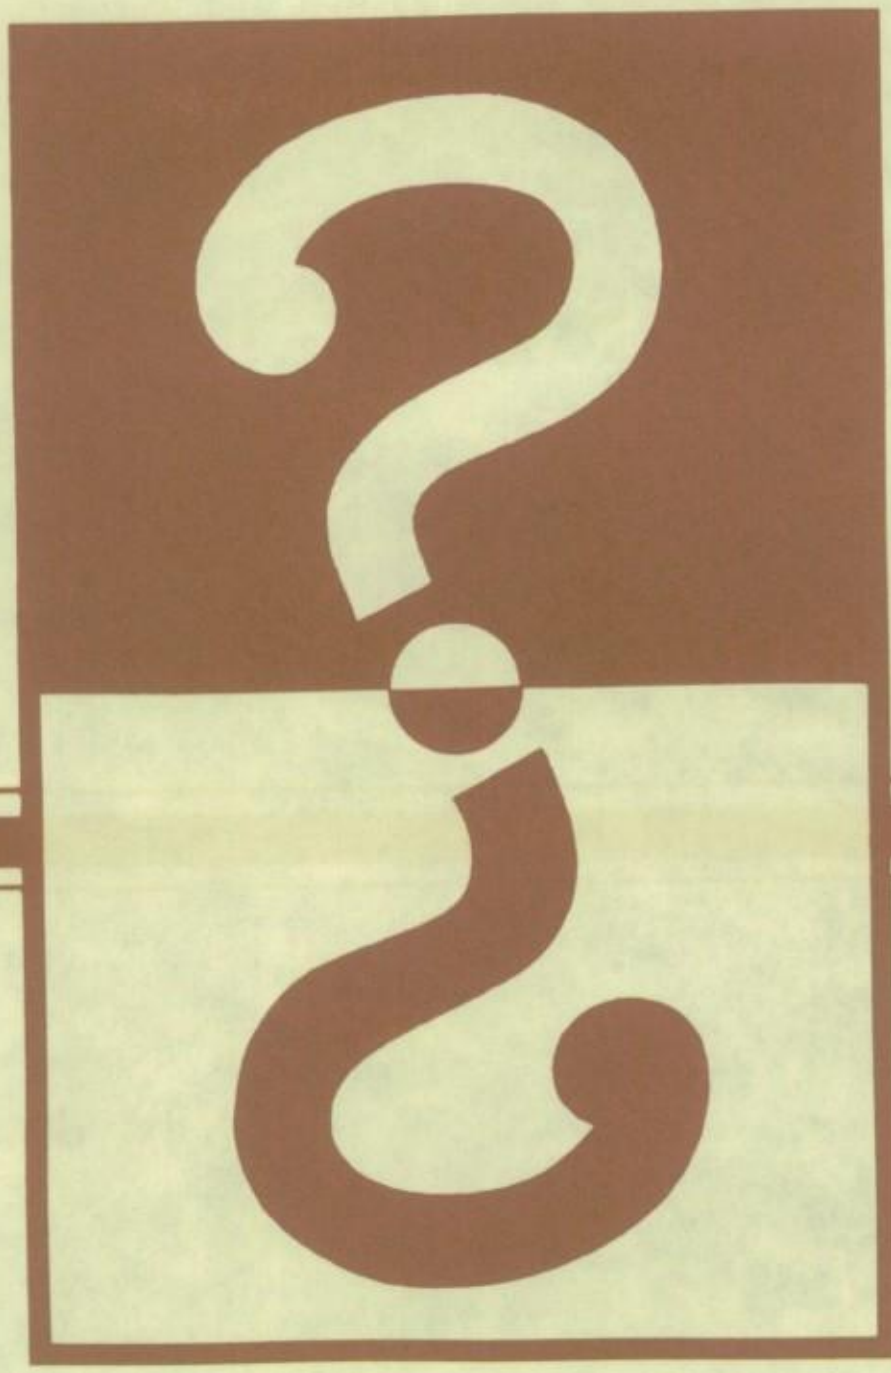
VENTURES

Activity is a natura



uriosity . . .

Possessing not only many variations but also much intensity, school activities create a natural outlet for those students who are willing to give time and effort to things which arouse their curiosity. A vast field of sports offers an assortment of athletic achievements to those who are qualified. Students who favor the arts find outlets for their creative abilities in the field of music and drama while providing entertainment for the community and fellow students. Extracurricular activities provide not only diversity but enrichment, as shown in the many academic clubs which further knowledge of the arts, the sciences, the humanities, and languages.

Every man ought to be inquisitive through every hour of his great adventure down to the day when he shall no longer cast a shadow in the sun. For if he dies without a question in his heart, what excuse is there for his continuance?

Activities

Activities form a basic part of every student's life. Besides being concerned with studies, students can and do engage in many outside activities. Whether they are entertaining, instructional, or informative, activities are important to any school's existence.

Curiosity — the seeking of their places in God's world, the widening of circles of friends, the never-ending search to find themselves — is the major reason for students' participating in activities.

The man who said "Everybody loves a parade" had the right idea in mind. The attraction of stirring music and pretty girls is tremendous. In the football parades held Friday afternoons before home games, music was provided by the Trojan Band and color by the T-Steppers and Pep Squad. In one unique football parade there was a grand finale of an elephant and rider.

Homecoming called for a more gala parade with a routine by the band, spirited Pep Squad and T-Steppers, and queens and maids riding atop convertibles.

The Christmas season was officially begun by the annual Christmas parade. In the parade, which drew a crowd of 15,000, two of the service clubs, Anchor and Career, tied for second place in the school division of the float competition.

Hall pep assemblies 'raise the roof'

Familiar strains of popular cheers echoed and re-echoed from the walls of the field house during pep assemblies. The true spirit of Troy was reflected in the faces and voices of the cheering masses of students.

This year, two pep assemblies were held on the second floor of HSHS. Trojan Spirit reverberated through the hallowed halls of Troy.

To boost spirit, the Student Council proclaimed February 6 "Sloppy Shirt Day." Ordinary white shirts were transformed into mod, mad signs of victory.

ALMA MATER

There's a school we all love dearly.
We call her old Hot Springs High,

We will fight and die.
We will cheer her on to victory.

Festivities of Homecoming end on musical note

A hush descends on all twelve hundred students as the 1967 Homecoming Royalty is announced. Each student feels the thrill and the tenseness as the girls walk the length of the field house.

The graceful flowing of each formal, the gentle lilt of the music, the sparkle of tears in each eye — these are all an integral part of this most memorable day in the lives of fourteen girls.

Prior to gametime, the girls are again presented to an admiring audience. Familiar yells take on new dimensions. Happiness reigns supreme on this day of days.

Band Variety Show plays to capacity crowds

The twenty-third annual Band Variety Show played to capacity crowds February 16 and 17. The Spartan Band opened the show with "Gallant Men," a tribute to America's fighting men. Concerts by the Viking and training bands, plus the added interest of a vocal solo by Freddie Ethridge entitled "What Do You Like," the Stardusters, the German Band, and the Tequila Tin at their peak rounded out the first half. Encores were demanded of all groups, and still the audience did not hear all it wanted of the stirring music.

After a short intermission the Trojan band opened the second half with the "Magnificent Seven." The audience was thrilled by the band's performance of the musical score from "Man of La Manche," which included such popular selections as "Man of La Manche" and "The Impossible Dream." The trumpet section was accompanied by the Trojan Band playing "Cascading Trumpets." After a fascinating piano solo by Phyllis Heinemann, the Trojan Band closed an excellent show with a thrilling rendition of "America the Beautiful" arranged by Karmen Dragon.

Two of the most festive seasons, Christmas and Thanksgiving, are welcomed at HSHS by special assemblies.

This Thanksgiving, the Troubadours presented timely selections, ranging from folk songs to hymns. Reverend George Ivey of First Methodist Church delivered a stimulating message. The student body found the true spirit of Thanksgiving by filling baskets for the needy.

The Trojan Band saluted Christmas in a music-filled assembly; students participated by trimming doors; Beta Club provided a postal service.

Though both seasons presented many festivities, the true meaning of neither was forgotten.

Trojans were inspired and informed by many entertaining assemblies. College choirs, slave sales, and speakers were welcomed as a happy change of pace from the daily routine.

Math Club gamblers learn odds are against winning

Many people like the idea of getting an easy dollar by betting and gambling. But is it so easy?

Probability Night, sponsored by Mu Alpha Theta, gave students an opportunity to gamble and to hear a lecture on the law of probability. The fifty-eight people present wagered until all their money cards were lost to craps, roulette, and slot machines.

The purpose of Probability Night was to have fun and learn that it is not easy to win from betting. The odds are against the gambler.

Basketball Homecoming

As a hush fell over the mass of Trojan admirers, the basketball royalty stepped through the traditional Homecoming arch into a mystical wonderland of color and music. Down an aisle strewn with hearts, and onto a platform decorated with the colors of both teams, ten beautifully-gowned girls proceeded amid the ooh's and ah's of a breathless assembly. Though nervous at first, each girl entered the assembly with poise and grace.

When the queens reached their places of honor, each was crowned and kissed — climax of the assembly.

T-Steppers entertained the royal courts with a specialty number. They performed at both the assembly and the game, making the day never-to-be-forgotten by queens, maids, and spectators.

The royalty ended their reign by presiding over the Homecoming dance at Lee Gym after the game.

Another exciting event that coincided with Homecoming was the crowning of the King and Queen of Pep. These two students were selected by the cheerleaders as being the most energetic and enthusiastic supporters of the teams.

Mock teachers find jobs harder than expected

After several years of lying latent, Student Administration Day was revived by the Student Council. After some revisions in the old manner of running the special day, the wheel began to turn on one of the biggest events of the year.

Elections for school board were held March 1; and after the results were announced, the board began taking applications for positions on the faculty and administration. After careful deliberation a faculty was chosen. March 20 was their day to shine. After five periods of grueling activity, the mock teachers held a faculty meeting to recouperate and evaluate the day.

On April 4 the Future Teachers showed their appreciation of Hot Springs High teachers at a tea given in their honor.

Highlighting the tea was the announcement of this year's Teacher of the Year. FTA members chose Mr. Jimmy Phillips as the teacher who most nearly fits their ideas of the perfect teacher.

Mr. Phillips was presented with a parchment scroll at the tea and with a plaque on Awards Day.

Trojan school calendar ablaze with special days

Special days abounded on the Trojan calendar. Students greeted the Christmas holidays with enthusiastic ardor. Tinsel and glitter, plus the promise of snow holidays, added to the merriment of Christmas and winter.

This year, "Stomp Central" and "Sloppy Shirt Day" were added to the calendar of festivities. In shirts decorated with such catchy slogans as "Flower Power Forever" and "Sock it to 'em, Trojans," happy students paraded down the halls as baffled teachers looked on.

Twirp week found the girls taking on the duties and privileges of their male counterparts while lean male billfolds were given a rest.

Easter holidays ushered in spring. Warm skies and gentle breezes seemed to make each day a special day. The crowning touch to the Trojan calendar was of course Graduation Day. This all-important day climaxed the year for everyone, but especially for seniors.

THE MOUSE THAT ROARED enjoys success

The Mouse That Roared, adapted for stage by Christopher Sergel, enjoyed a very successful two-night run November 1 and 17. The curtain opened both nights at 8:05 to near capacity crowds. The two-act comedy was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone — cast, crew, and audience.

It presented the story of a small country whose only export was a fine bouquet of wine. Because its wine was being imitated by a company in California, it chose to wage war on the United States. Everyman Today was the spring production of Thespian Troupe #78. This morality play, written by Walter Sorell, is a modern version of the ancient play Everyman. Vote! Vote! Vote! These three words ruled the Student Council election of 1968. To help their fellow students make the great decision of who the leaders of next year's student body would be, the campaigners and their followers used various materials. They plastered posters all over the school from radiator to water fountain. They seized every available voter to attach a snappy slogan to.

By the end of the week, students began to narrow down their choices. After the campaign speeches had been given, decisions were made, and ballots cast. The work of campaigning was gone, but the experience lingered in the minds of all.

Pilgrimage to classrooms made again by parents

Parents received a small sampling of the daily routine of their offspring on November 6, during National Education Week. For those parents of sophomores and new students, the trek was a premiere to the exhausting task of trudging from Lee to the fourth floor and back down to the band room or to Lee again. This night gave them a chance to meet the people who have the greatest influence on their children from 8:30 to 3:30. An addition to the schedule, to which the students are not accustomed, was the serving of refreshments, provided by the National Honor Society, and the enjoyment of fellowship after their trial day at school.

After the night was over and parents had trudged back to cars parked blocks away, they had found a new understanding of their children.

Valentine's Day honors King, Queen of Hearts

As Valentine's Day dawns on the land of Troy, speedy Key Club messengers are seen rushing candy, flowers, and thoughtful cards to an eagerly-awaiting student body. Another tradition in the Land of Troy is the crowning of a King and Queen of Hearts. These two students are the boy and girl who have captured the hearts of the students and the spirit of Troy.

Through a room decorated in the traditional Valentine colors of red and white, down a path strewn with hearts, and up to a throne backed by a heart, the couple proceed amid the cheers and applause of an expectant audience. In a gracefully flowing gown, laden with flowers, the Queen smiles through a veil of tears. The King, though disconcerted by the open show of affection of the crowd, graciously accepts his place beside the Queen. As each is crowned and receives a kiss, applause again mounts, and the walls grow and swell with the sound of cheers.

HOMEMADE LUNCH BOX PURSES give students an opportunity to express individuality.

It is a mad, mod world. Mod was the word in fashion this year. Textured hose of all descriptions were worn by girls and some teachers as well. Mini dresses were worn by all girls who could escape the eyes of the administration. Make-them-yourself lunch box purses, psychedelic striped dresses, wide-heeled ribbon shoes, and, of course, the popular pants dress were worn by all girls with a fashion-minded interest.

There were the favorites returning from last year — wide-band watches; but this year with a new twist — bright- colored interchangeable bands. The box purses and yarn ribbons for the hair were still among the favorites. For the male, the latest word in fashion was tasseled loafers. Old Army jackets were also "in." Among the favorites were windbreakers in assorted colors with embroidered monograms.

All students look forward to noonday break

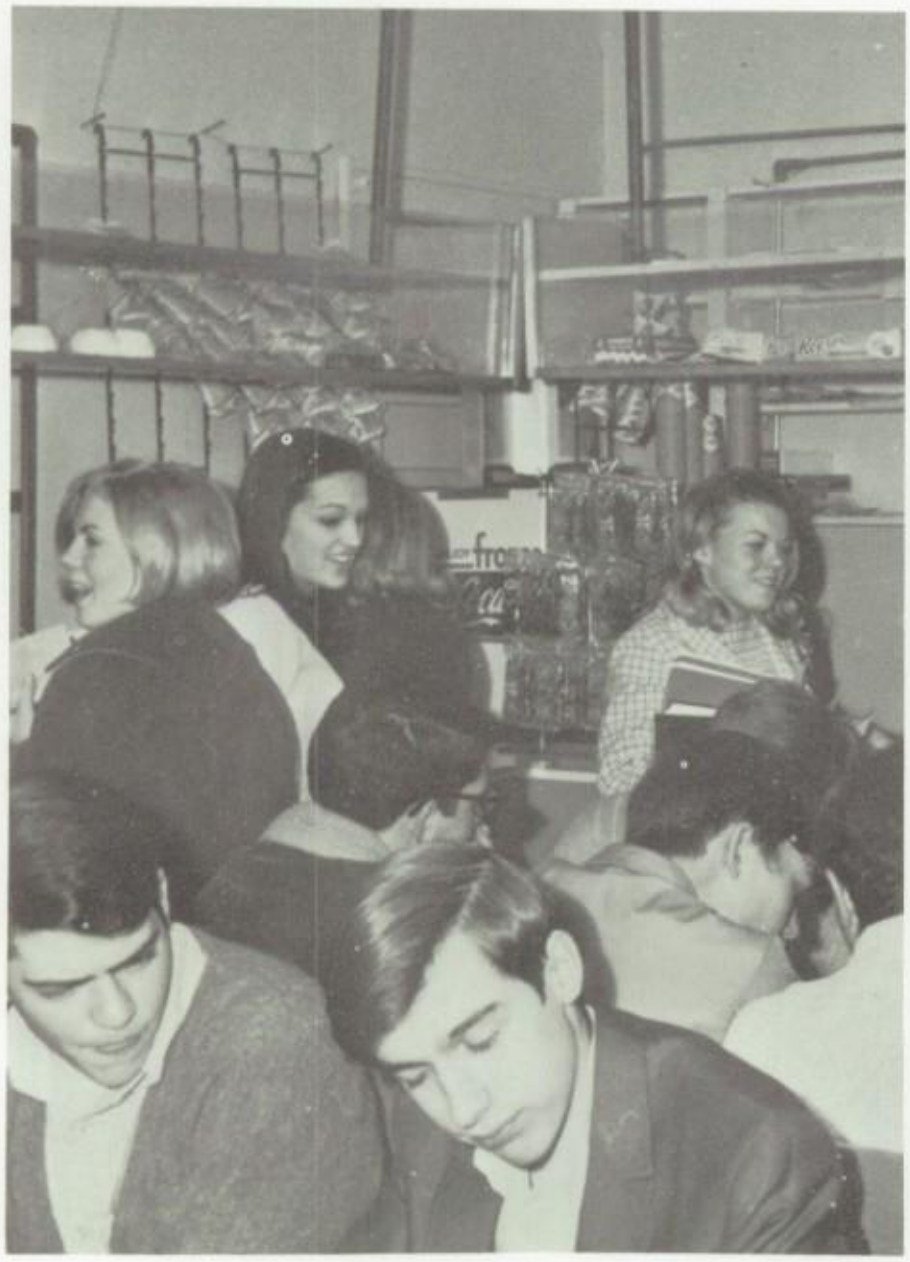
WELL-COOKED MEALS offered by the school cafeteria satisfy the appetites of many students.

At the sound of the 11:45 lunch bell, 1200 students pour out of classrooms with one idea in mind — food!

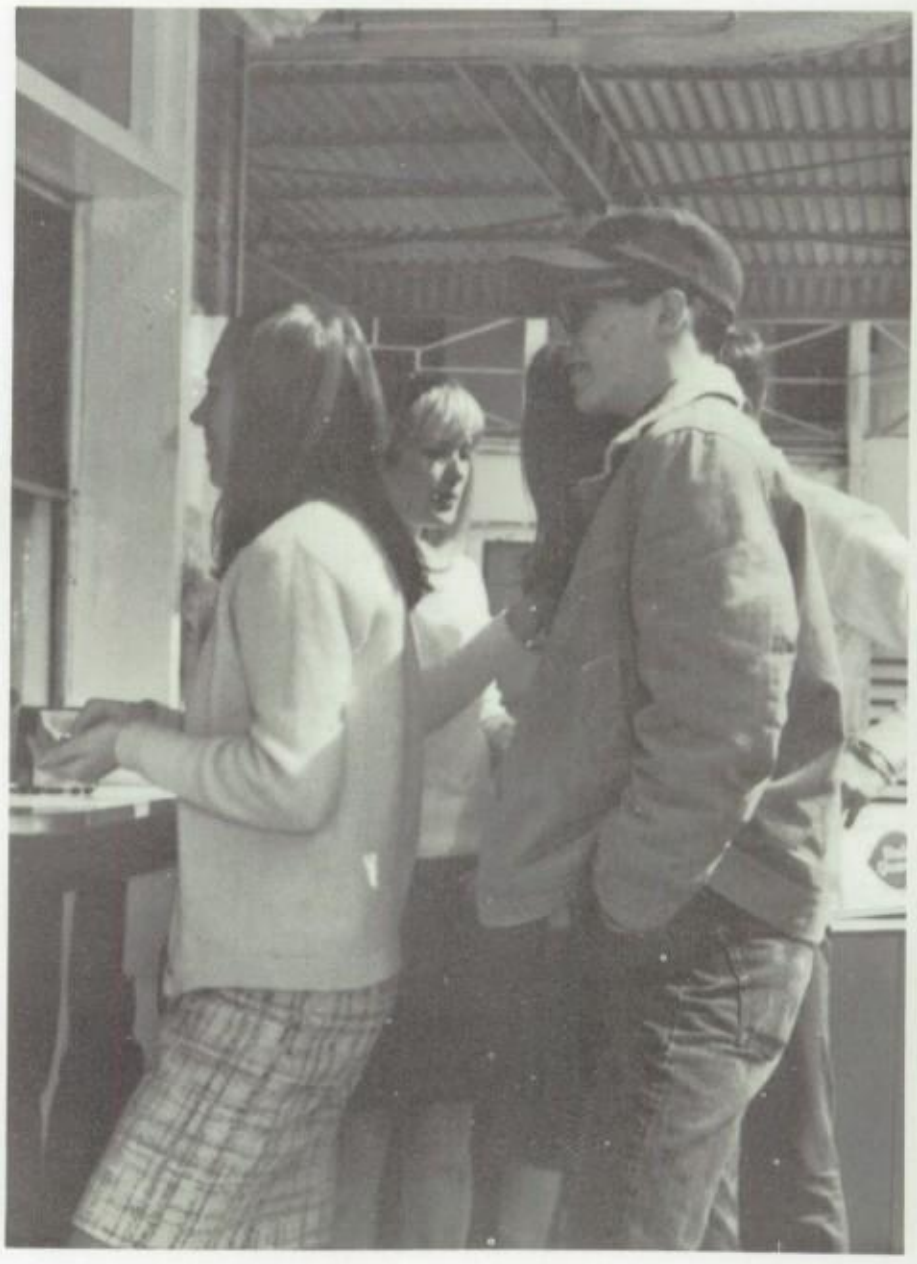
Many students find the hot lunches served in the school cafeteria appetizing, but others feed their hunger elsewhere. Some dash out for an on-the-go lunch at Burger Chef, and others satisfy themselves with a confection from the hall vending machines. In sunny weather, the wall is lined with students enjoying their nourishment in the open air. But no matter what, where, or how, every student thoroughly enjoys his lunch.

While satisfying their appetites, students use the lunch period as a chance to get together with their friends for a chatting session and to catch up on the latest gossip. Between lunch and the fourth period bell, students find a few minutes to relax, standing in the halls, visiting on the walk, or looking over the railing on fourth floor.

MANY STUDENTS enjoy the atmosphere and food at Huddle Hut during the lunch period.



STUDENTS FIND that places such as Dairy Queen are geared to provide them with their favorite foods.



Destination classroom—by car, bus, or foot

Whether by car, bus, or foot, Trojan troopers reach their destination — school. At eight o'clock each morning, students and teachers converge on this core of animated activity by assorted means and multicolored modes of transportation. As the traffic trouble thickens, so too climbs the cluster of cliques. This mass of manpower will later surge up the steps and into the classrooms, where it will be transformed into students with scholarly intent. Thus another day of learning dawns at HSHS.

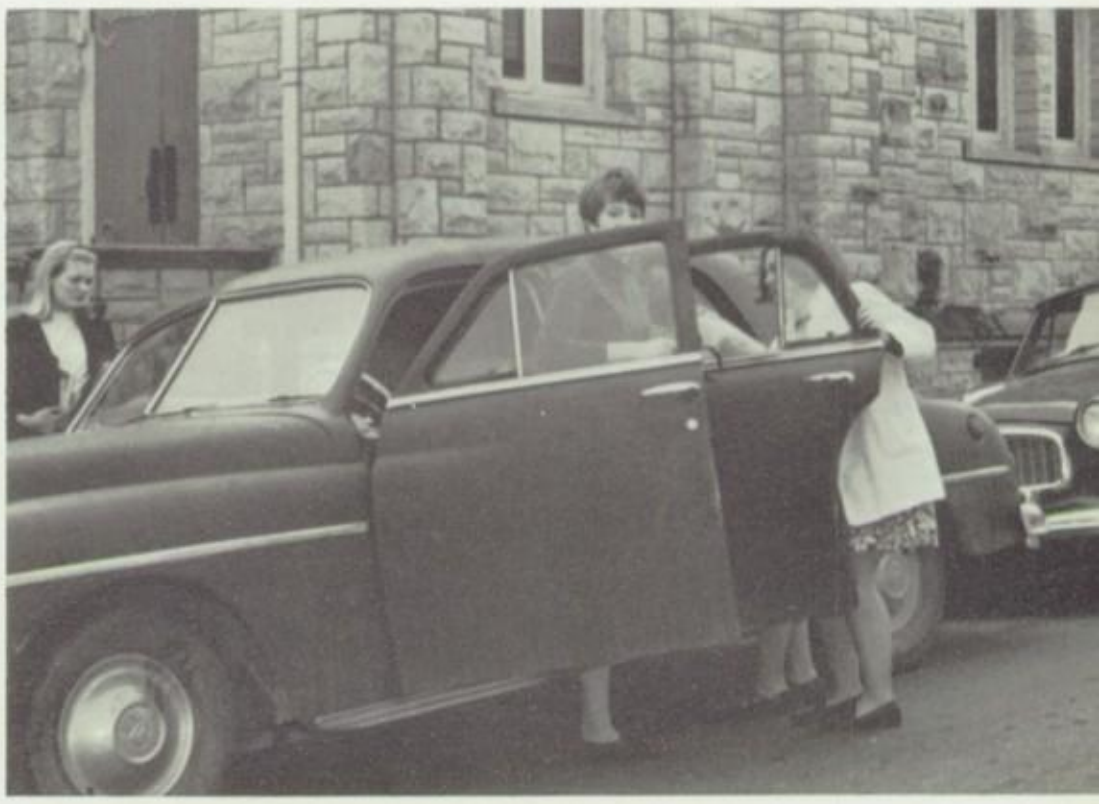
Cars are by far the most frequent form of transportation. They are not only a basic way of travel but also a way of life in some instances. Today's world has made them, not just a symbol of success, but a necessity.

The massive yellow school bus is also a common method of transporting students from the far-reaching limits of town. These towering trailers are kept in good running condition by the auto mechanics class and are as dependable as are the teachers who drive them.

SCHOOL BUSES provide transportation for many, a place for gossip, and time for last-minute homework.

DEBBY ANDERSON proves that the hardy breed of "footsore pedestrians" is not yet dead as she wends her way homeward.

A LONG WAY from the horse and carriage is the modern mode of transportation provided by Julie Connelly for her set.



Sports

Sportsmanship and a "never-die" spirit are the essentials of any athlete's nature. Whether it's win, lose, or draw, all students recognize the importance of these two qualities, for they may mean the difference between winning or losing, cheering the victors or consoling the losers.

To keep the mind and body fit has always been the chief aim of sports. Without a clear eye and keen mind for judging distances, most golfers would only rim the cup, most basketball players would lose the extra point, and most football players would miss the field goal attempt.

A nation is only as sound or as fit as the average person living in the average community. To carry out vigorous policies in a fast-paced world, a nation must have a vigorous people.

Trojans score

JUBILANT FACES fill the Trojans' locker room after their 16-0 victory over Benton.

Although small in size and number, the Hot Springs Trojans showed enough spirit, dedication and will-to-win to break a long losing streak and turn the 1967 season into a success.

The Trojans constantly displayed an enthusiastic attitude that few other teams in the state could match. Consequently they were able to make the top 20 high school football ratings twice and post a 2-9 season record.

Young and inexperienced, the Trojans were host to the Malvern Leopards in Hot Springs' season debut at Rix Field. Although the Men of Troy fell 27-0, they gained the much needed baptism of battle.

Malvern converted numerous Trojan errors into scores in the early minutes of the game and left the field at halftime with a 20-0 lead. Hot Springs came out a different team in the second half, and although it did not score, it allowed Malvern only seven more points.

A veteran squad with a game under their belt, the Trojans met the Jacksonville Red Devils at Rix a week later. After four quarters of hard-nose grid action, the first victory in 23 tries

Trojans broke a 16-game losing streak with a 20-14 win that evened the record for 1967 at 1-1-0.

Don McAfee, Trojan tailback, ignited Hot Springs' offense in the first half when he scored on runs of 28 and 38 yards. The Devils fought back though, and the Trojans found themselves down 14-13 at the half.

For almost 12 minutes the teams battled to a draw, but with 7:14 to play Kenny Quast grabbed a Devil fumble in their endzone for the winning score.

It was head coach Tommy Brasher's first victory in his two years at Hot Springs, and all he could say was, "It's just great."

After McAfee scored on a 28-yard run in the first quarter of the Pine Bluff game and Quast made the PAT, the teams battled for three quarters at a 7-7 tie. The Zebras, who were ranked eight in the state, put together one final scoring drive on the mud-slick field, and with 3:41 to play in the game they pushed across one final scoring play that enabled them to rise above the Men of Troy by a narrow 13-7 margin.

Trojans ground opponent's attempts at victory

Over 4,000 fans watched the Trojans combine a stingy defense with a savage offense that carried Hot Springs to an easy 16-0 win over Benton at Rix Field.

Quast split the uprights with a 35-yard field goal early in the first quarter to start Hot Springs' scoring. Midway in the second McAfee carried in from the six-yard line, and after Quast converted, the Trojans were able to hold a 10-0 lead until the half. Benton stopped Hot Springs in the third quarter, but McAfee found a gap in Benton's defense in the waning minutes, and he scampered around the right end for three yards and for the last six points in the game.

The Trojans were behind only 7-2 at the end of the first half against the No. 4 Central Tigers, but disaster struck in the final quarters as the Tigers surged ahead 27-2. Randy Arnold made the Trojans' only points when he trapped a Tiger runner in Central's end zone.

Baby Trojans hold promise of improved team

JUNIOR VARSITY PLAYERS get a taste of what it will be like next year.

The weary Trojans began to feel the effects of a hard schedule when they came home to meet the Texarkana Razorbacks. McAfee stunned the Porkers when he streaked 59 yards for a touchdown on the first play of the game, but the Hogs regrouped and struck back to go ahead 21-6 by the intermission. Although Hot Springs held Texarkana scoreless in the second half, the Trojans were able to manage only a single score. The Razorbacks held their 21-12 lead throughout the rest of the game.

The Trojans met the No. 2 Northside Grizzlies at Fort Smith on Friday the 13th, and after suffering many costly mistakes, Hot Springs was handed a 34-0 piece of bad luck. The Grizzlies surged to a 27-0 lead in the first two quarters, but the Trojans settled down in the second half and allowed Northside to score only one final touchdown.

A Homecoming crowd of over 4000 persons watched the Trojans battle valiantly against a strong Fayetteville Bulldog team at Rix Field.

After a rugged first-half battle, the teams left the field with only a pair of O's hung on the scoreboard. The Bulldogs began to rip into Hot Springs' defense with an off-tackle play in the second half, and it put them ahead 7-0. Early in the fourth quarter Quast ran 34-yards for six points for the Trojans' six points. The Bulldogs held a narrow 7-6 lead for five minutes, but late in the game they made it 14-7 with a late score.

Hot Springs could not stop All-American Steve Brown of Springdale as the Bulldogs rolled over the Trojans 31-0 on a snow-covered field. Springdale jumped to a 25-0 advantage in the first half, but it was able to score only six points in the last two quarters.

Fort Smith Southside slipped in a single scoring play in a game dominated by defensive units at Rix Field to defeat Hot Springs 7-0. Southside scored late in the second quarter to go ahead 7-0 at the half, and then the Rebels made their lead stand up in the second half by holding the Trojans at bay.

For the second time all season the Trojans held a lead at the half when they played El Dorado. Hot Springs held a 3-0 lead at the half, but the Wildcats exploded for 20 points in the last two quarters to win handily 20-3. Quast booted a 30-yard field goal in the second quarter for Hot Springs' only score.

It was the final game for the Trojans. For the first time in several years, the Trojans did not play 12 games, since Smackover was dropped from the schedule.

Some of the boys who played on the "B" team, though, often were playing regular games twice a week. The size of the team forced some of the younger players to play varsity and junior varsity. The "B" team played five games during the season, and they were able to win three while they lost the two games by a total of 14 points.

COACH VORIS JOHNSON settles into his usual pose as a game progresses.

Practice makes perfect, and even while the football season was in full swing the Trojan cagers were striving for perfection in daily workouts in the field house.

In drills after school they prepared for the longest basketball season in the school's history and for what was to become one of the most successful.

Coach Voris Johnson molded the nucleus of the squad out of six returning lettermen and one returning starter. Although he enjoyed more depth than in recent years, he noted early in November that inexperience was going to be a serious handicap.

When the Trojans began regular play late in November, they were starting a campaign that lasted through March and ran through 28 games including 2 tournaments and 12 conference battles.

Before a home crowd the Trojans met and defeated an outclassed Sheridan five, 69-41. The varsity wrapped up the game in the first quarter and the reserves played out the final three.

Two days later the Trojans won their second home game when they dropped Jonesboro, 56-45. The small but scrappy Hurricanes made a run for a victory in the final quarter but the Trojans' early lead stood up. Steve A. Baldwin and Tim Parker were high scorers with 17 and 11 points.

Hot Springs then went on the road for four games, and when they came back home, they had broken even for a record of 4-2 in the first six battles.

Hot Springs resumed home action when they met El Dorado in a loop tilt. Although Richard Oliver turned in a 20-point performance, it did not make up for the Cats hot hand, and El Dorado took a 66-59 win.

Hot Springs then played three games in the McClellan Tournament in five days. Two quick wins put the Hot Springs squad in the finals, and McClellan could not stop the Trojans' momentum in the championship game, 55-43.

Benton was the first to fall after the Christmas vacation, and then after the Trojans suffered a 47-37 setback at Fort Smith, they put together a win streak that lasted for eight games.

Midseason victory streak boosts record, ratings

With either Tim Parker, Richard Oliver, or Steve A. Baldwin setting high scoring honors, the Trojans turned their 8-4 record into a 16-4 chart and climbed toward the top of both state cage ratings.

North Little Rock came first, 74-60, followed by Texarkana, 70-61, and Springdale, 80-63, to make Hot Springs' season record 11-4 and its loop chart 2-3.

After a victory out of town, the Trojans again came home to whip Pine Bluff, 80-68. A revenge 61-56 over El Dorado two weeks later set the stage for a showdown battle between the surging Trojans and the No. 1 Central Tigers.

Some 1600 persons jammed the field house to watch the Trojans battle the heavily favored Tigers. Hot Springs stunned Central in the first quarter by scoring 27 points, and then by playing conservative ball and shrugging off a third quarter cold streak, it went on to win, 61-53.

TIRED AND SWEATY, the Trojans call a breather.

Trojans close regular season with victories,

The utopian feeling that followed lasted only two days, though, as the second-ranked Northside Grizzlies upset Hot Springs' streaking applecart in a conference game, 61-41.

The Trojans managed to regroup in time to dump Fayetteville, 45-44, but then they stumbled again when Texarkana and Central both got revenge wins back to back.

The Trojans closed the regular season on a winning note by crushing the last three teams they played. Both Hall and Springdale lost to Hot Springs on the Trojan court, and then the Men of Troy dumped the Bulldogs at Fayetteville, 69-62, in the last regular game.

The Trojans returned from Springdale Saturday and had almost no time in which to practice for their first-round game with Jonesboro in the state tournament at Little Rock Monday.

The Hurricanes, the same team that fell to the Trojans in the beginning of the season surprised the Trojans in the tourney with a 47-45 win.

The loss gave Hot Springs a 20-8 season and a 7-5 conference record.

The Trojan "B" Team played 24 games during its season, and although its final record was 14-10, it blazed a path through conference play with a 10-2 chart. Both losses came from Northside by a total of 11 points.

KENNY SMITH uses all his energies to jump the bar.

There are 440 yards around the oval at Southwest. The red-clay pathway starts in front of the judges' box, stretches past the discus field, curves around the pole vault pit, streaks in front of the grandstand, winds in front of the high jump area, and finally arches into the home stretch again.

Before the track season is finished, each Trojan cindermen will have every foot of the way etched into memory because no matter whether one is a sprinter or a discus thrower, he still runs on this track every day. One minute is considered a fast time to make the run, but this year Coach Roger Rogers is blessed with a speedier group than in recent years and the one-minute mark is often broken in practices. Paced by Don McAfee and Ray Slay, two fleet-footed seniors, and a pack of eager-to-learn juniors and sophomores, the Trojan cindermen are shaping up into one of the finest Hot Springs has had.

But it takes more than a fast group of cindermen to win the meets Coach Rogers will tell anyone, and he will go on to say the Trojans have one of the most inexperienced field events squads the school has had in recent years. Most of the Trojans' points in the early meets came through the track team, but Coach Rogers is hoping the rest of the squad will be ready for the AAA Western Conference meet that will be held here late in the school year. The meet will replace the annual Trojan Relays.

Equilibrium and sportsmanship, assets in tennis

Of all the high school sports, tennis is played on a more individual basis than any other. In the singles matches there are just two players, one from each team, trying to wear each other down and pick up the points. Doubles pit two against two, but the battle plan is relatively the same.

This year the Trojan netmen had almost to begin anew, as all of the players during the last two seasons had graduated.

The inexperience that plagued the team this year was disastrous, and wins were hard to come by. But as the season continued and each player totaled up more time in actual games, they began attaining the air of a veteran squad.

There were no seniors on the team this year, and this fact in itself tells almost the entire story. The 1968 season is more of a warm-up than anything else in preparation for the 1969 year, when the entire squad will be returning.

Heading the field are Tim Parker, Dennis Cambpell, Danny Meek — all juniors; and Rollin Caristianos, Dennis Francis, Jimmy Ledbetter, Tommy Jackson — all sophomores. During the eight matches this season everyone will get a chance to play.

for GRA intramurals

Intramurals were the highlight of GRA's year of activities. The Girls' Recreation Association kickball tournament winner was the hustling French Club Team. The victors in the area of volleyball were the Pep Squad members.

By participating in these games, girls gained points which were totaled to determine which members were eligible to receive jackets. Jackets were the reward for a year of strenuous physical activity on the part of the recipients.

An addition to the field of intramurals was a basketball game between the Trojan Booster Club and male members of the faculty, another fund-raising sponsored by the Booster Club.

WILL SHE OR WON'T SHE make the extra point in the T-Stepper-Pep Squad game? Only Debbie and the basketball know for sure.

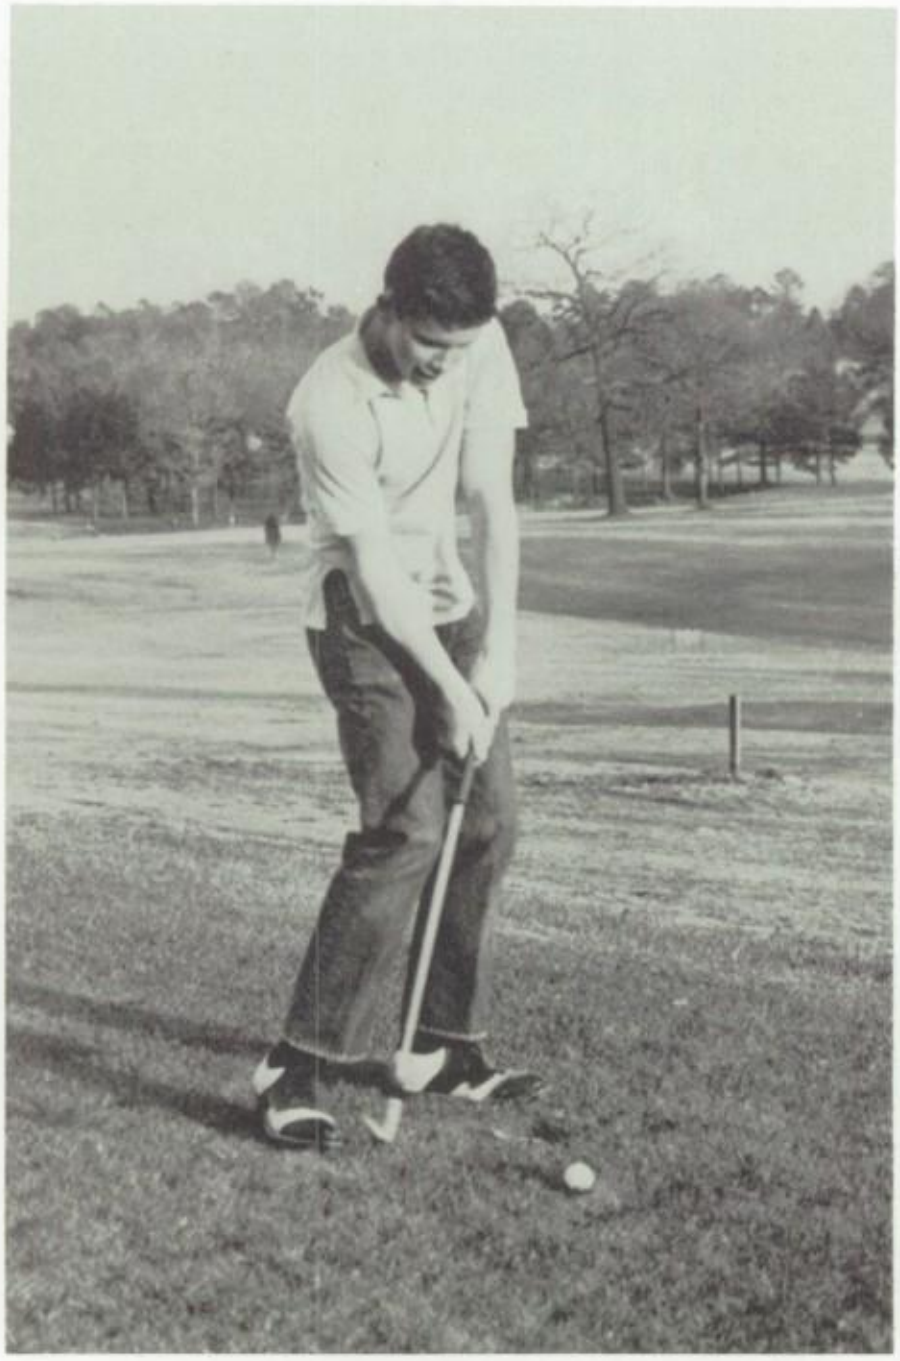
Concentration and skill—formula for perfect golf



BOBBY LEE WORKS on his irons in one of the many practices before a meet.

While the Trojan cindermen are pounding their way across the track at Southwest and the high school tennis players are scurrying back and forth over the burning asphalt courts at Jaycee Park, the members of the golf team are taking in a casual 18 holes at the Hot Springs Golf and Country Club.

After fifth period every day, the eight golfers make it out to the course, where they pair up in two's or three's — or sometimes just play alone — and set out hoping to improve their game a little more.

Although graduation hurt the team last year, several sophomores and juniors have helped the three seniors fashion one of the best golf teams in the state.

First-man position, although it varies, is usually held by Charlie Watkins, who was state amateur golfer last year. Watkins, although only a junior, can break par and seldom loses a match.

There are three other positions on the varsity team, and almost every one of the eight players has won the right to play in at least one meet.

Bobby Lee, Steve Schrader, and Granger McDaniel are the three seniors on the team and usually set the pace for the rest of the players. Rounding out the eight are Cal Campbell, a junior; Alan Lax, a junior; Latt Batchelor, a sophomore; and Steve Crain, a sophomore.

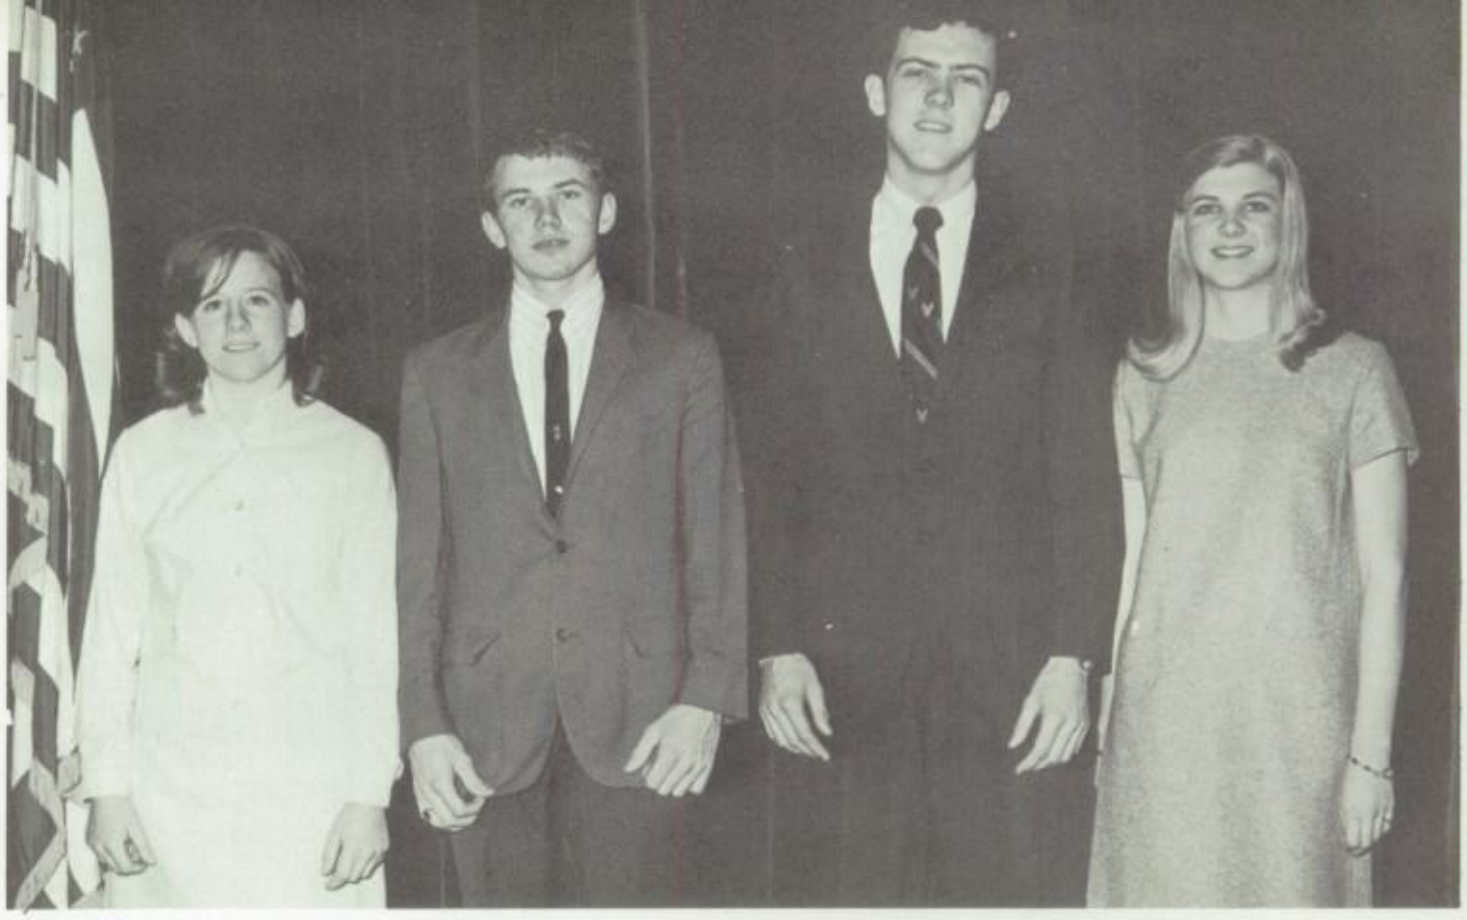
Clubs

Clubs are one of the oldest, yet most effective, teaching aids. They demonstrate to students — by practical experience — many ideas taught in classrooms.

In service clubs, such as Crown Club for girls and the newly-formed Interact Club for boys, the principles of good citizenship are not just discussed but are actually put into action, as when the members are collecting for the March of Dimes.

In academic clubs and honor societies, mathematically-minded Mu Alpha Thetas, busily-baking FHA girls, happily-hammering Thespians — all enjoy the fellowship that comes with belonging to such clubs. Athletes also enjoy the companionship of other sports enthusiasts in clubs like VITA Club.

Though each club differs in rules of membership and appeal to its members, all clubs have one thing in common: curiosity caused the members to join the club, but hard work held their interest.



STUDENT COUNCIL OFFICERS: Sandy Haness, treasurer; Rusty McAdams, vice-president; Clay Mitchell, president; Peggy Dierks, secretary.

Student Council—voice of entire student body

According to the constitution, student councils were first developed to create "a forum for free expression of student opinion and a channel of cooperation . . ." HSHS Student Council, aware of these ideals, has done much this year to accomplish goals and present new ideas for improvement.

With the guidance of Mr. Herrington, sponsor, the council has participated in many various projects. One of the most exciting events, Student Administration Day, was under its sponsorship. For one whole day, qualified students had a chance to be a part of the administration. Besides being in charge of all dances, Student Council directed Basketball Homecoming and King and Queen of Hearts Day. Student Council was responsible for service club changes and also sponsored Shirt Day, a day when all loyal Trojans wore sloppy shirts in support of their team.

To help support its various activities, the Student Council made money by maintaining the pencil and paper machines. It also had charge of the numerous vending machines on the first floor.

state vice-president

This year's Beta Club has had an active role in school activities. The projects directed by this organization were varied. Many members enjoyed distributing holiday cards to the homerooms for the annual Beta Club mailbox. Other members enjoyed publishing and selling student directories, which are a necessity for every student.

One of the biggest events Beta members participated in was the state-wide Beta Club convention held in Little Rock. Thirty-two delegates were sent this year. Terry Muse, a junior here, was elected vice-president for next year's convention.

The installation of new members was also an important occasion for this club. Beta Club this year had ninety-three members with B or better scholastic averages.

Many of the leaders of the school are in Beta Club. Because of the standards set for the club, each of the members possesses leadership, intelligence, and a desire to serve the school and community. Beta Club is an important organization, and many functions would not be possible without its support.

Anchor Club sponsors Junior Miss Pageant

Junior Miss were two words which became very familiar to every girl in Anchor Club this year. For the first time in the history of Anchor Club, it undertook the monumental task of producing the Western District Junior Miss Pageant. As a result of the tremendous effort put forth, the club was cited nationally as having the fourth best District Pageant.

Again this year Anchor Club helped with many community projects. Some of the projects were ringing bells for the Salvation Army, addressing envelopes and selling bread for the March of Dimes. Two of the regular seasonal activities were a Thanksgiving basket and Christmas caroling. The club helped promote school spirit by making "Good luck" clovers to place on the lockers.

Participating again in the annual Christmas parade, the Anchor Club entry, entitled "The Night Before Christmas," tied for second place in the school division.

Career Club contributes time and effort

As a new undertaking this year, yearbooks were typed and distributed to the members of Career Club, enabling them to keep up with future happenings.

Career Club sponsored the sale of zip code books and also distributed pamphlets concerning the issue of a junior college. Members gave their time to such worthy causes as the March of Dimes by selling bread and candy.

Meetings were highlighted by programs including a style show by a well-known authority, handwriting analysis, a discussion by a cosmetologist, and a program concerning underprivileged children.

Members entered a float, "Christmas in Never, Never, Land," in the Christmas parade sponsored by the Hot Springs Jaycees and tied for second place.

"NOW THIS WILL BE OUR FLOAT," Mary Tom tells Crown Club members as Janie and Debbie look at her sketch.

Crown Club members gladly gave their services to the March of Dimes by using their talents as saleswomen to persuade their friends and relatives to buy candy and bread. In the Christmas season they collected toys for children during the annual toy drive and rang bells to collect money for the Salvation Army. They sponsored a winning entry in the Miss Teen Hot Springs Pageant. Girls gave several hours of their time by telling stories to small children during story time at the Garland County Library.

Something different, enjoyable, was an afternoon picnic at a nearby lake. The annual banquet held in the spring was a welcome for new members and a farewell to graduating members. The officers for next year were presented. The highlight of the evening's entertainment occurred when the secret pals were revealed.

Vigorous boys find outlet for energy in Key Club

Energy was the main ingredient needed by every Key Club member this year. Although the club could have no new members, it carried on with increased vigor.

Community and school projects were the main concern of the club. Key Club helped with the March of Dimes by selling bread, and with the Christmas Seal program by putting up signs around town.

At school the club was in charge of the Valentine Box, cleaned out the trophy case, and sponsored the annual locker clean-up.

A banquet at Jud's, a speech on Teenage Republicans by I. Granger McDaniel, and a girls' panel were some of the special meetings held by the club.

Mu Alpha Thetas challenge problems of tomorrow

Mu Alpha Theta is a club organized for students with an interest in mathematics. Eligibility for membership is a B average and at least five semesters of math.

Each year the members compete in a national math contest, and an award is presented to the student scoring highest on the test.

The highlight of the club's projects this year was the sponsoring of Probability Night. This program demonstrated that gambling does not pay off. Mr. Buttrum proved that the odds of getting the number are improbable and that it's best not to bet without a system.

Most of the Mu Alpha Theta members plan to continue their study of mathematics in college or in later careers.

DOUG SZENHER and James Vandever battle for the championship in the Math Club chess tournament, while Lucius Ripley is an interested spectator.

Bio-Chem-Phy expands its interests in science

In today's educated world, miracle discoveries are being made every day, but still many mysteries of science remain. Bio-Chem-Phy helps broaden and increase the interests of students who enjoy delving into the how's and why's of science.

Members were hosts to the annual Science Fair, science students' chance to show their ingenuity in conducting experiments and constructing projects. Winners in the Fair were given opportunities to go on to other contests to compete for district, then state prizes. Fair projects covered many different fields of science, including electronics, medical science, math, physics, biology, and chemistry.

Various scholarships were offered to interested, qualified science students through Bio-Chem-Phy.

History Club views past, present, and future

History Club this year made its own history by doubling its membership.

The club during the year attended a breakfast and sponsored an opinion poll on controversial issues facing the nation as well as the state.

Since the Hot Springs Historical Society was interested in the high school club, it invited two of the latter's members to attend bi-monthly meetings.

Enjoyable, as well as informative, was the field trip taken to Tucker Prison Farm. The students saw how prisoners live and how they work, as well as what they do for entertainment.

The club also has a small collection of antiquated articles which it adds to periodically.

JCL dedicated to prolonging life of classics

Junior Classical League is an organization dedicated to prolonging the life of the ancient Latin civilization. All students enrolled in the course are eligible to become regular members of the club. Initiation is a ceremony presided over by the officers and members of the previous year dressed as Roman deities.

As one of its activities, JCL holds an annual banquet, for which all decorations and entertainment are provided by the members themselves. The HSHS group is affiliated with the national JCL.

Les Elites—society for French students

Requirements for membership in Les Elites, the society for French students, is one semester of credit in the language and payment of the club dues. Anyone who has previously studied French is entitled to membership. Instead of having monthly meetings, as they had done in the past, members decided to have only a few night meetings.

Students gave a continental flavor to their first meeting by recreating familiar American TV commercials, in the French manner – both in language and in gestures and movements. Although this action began as a learning activity, it quickly became hilarious entertainment.

Les Elites' goal is to ignite student interest in France and her people – their language, habits, and ideas – while still maintaining intellectual accomplishment.

Spanish Club corresponds with nearby neighbors

To better relations with their neighbors to the south, students have extended their working knowledge of Spanish by corresponding with their pals across the border.

This year, as one of its group activities, the club wrote letters of good will during the Christmas season to the men overseas. Members also take pride in having sent not only a representative to Girls State, but also one to Boys State.

To be eligible for membership in this organization, students must maintain a C average and presently be enrolled in a Spanish class.

The meetings were held the third Wednesday morning of each month. Prepared programs with guest speakers enlivened the meetings. Activities included listening to records and reading Spanish magazines. Members also enjoyed the annual banquet held at the close of the year.

Future Teachers learn the rewards of teaching

FUTURE TEACHER MISSY McCRARY listens attentively as Mrs. Crane explains to her the rules of the Delta Kappa Gamma scholarship.

"High school years are the most important years o your life." These words have a very special meaning fo Future Teachers. The time spent in classrooms is doubly important to these girls. Not only do they learn the basic of chemistry or the principles of their Puritan forefathers but they also gain a practical insight into the duties responsibilities, and problems of teaching. Before thei eyes, the newest aids and techniques of teaching are demonstrated. Later as real-life teachers, they will assimi late these "bits and pieces" of information into the type of educator they would most like to be.

Each spring the girls attend a state convention, which will be held in Conway this year. Earlier, Future Teacher sold Trojan pennants to help pay the yearly expenses fo this convention and for their OGB page.

Another event of major importance was the choosing of "Teacher of the Year." This man or woman is alway one who they feel exemplifies those qualities of teaching which they admire.

Future Homemakers spotlight beautification

Beautification was the keynote of this year's Future Homemakers of America. Cooperating with various garden clubs in the city, these girls worked to make school playgrounds and Jaycee Park prettier places for all concerned.

Twenty-five junior and senior girls were members of FHA.

These members participated in other activities besides their beautification project. In February they attended an informal progressive dinner. To bring money into their treasury, they sold candy.

Rockefeller proclaims Statewide DECA Week

DECA Week was the big event this year for DECA Club. Governor Rockefeller signed a proclamation declaring November 5-11 DECA Week. During this week students from Hot Springs High were on the air — on television and radio.

Jim Riley, president of Hot Springs High DECA Club, was elected state president. He attended many regional meetings and headed the activities at the State Leadership Conference in Little Rock, March 8 and 9. Twelve members of the local club attended this meeting.

The club helped with such community projects as addressing envelopes for the March of Dimes. The club also had a candy sale. In April the annual Employer-Employee Banquet was held.

awarded to Trojan bandsmen

A very successful, productive year for the Trojan Band started with a sparkling marching season featuring as one of its high lights an original precision drill arranged by some of the bandsmen.

The Christmas season brought a concert for the student body.

Tryouts for Region Four Clinic were held January 27, and as a result several of the musicians were chosen to partcipate in the All-State Band Clinic.

In February the band was the heart of the annual Band Variety Show, the major means the band has of raising funds.

Medals were the form of the reward given bandsmen on March 23 for their outstanding performances in solo and ensemble competition at Region Festival, which was held at Southern State College. The band as a whole played a concert for three judges and received criticism and a rating. The receipt of a judiciary rating of I or II on solo and ensemble performance granted many bandsmen the chance to take their solos and ensembles on to State Festival, which was held in Hot Springs.

The final performance of the year was a Band Awards assembly honoring the senior members of the band.

of group entertainers

An unusually peppy pep band added spark to the activities of Hot Springs High this year. Special arrangements of popular songs were featured in half-time entertainment and pep assemblies.

The Stardusters, composed of Trojan Band members who were granted membership by audition, provided stage band music for numerous banquets and festivities during the year.

The Tequila Tin, growing in popularity throughout Hot Springs and the state, made many TV and other public performances during the year. The German Band brought a European touch to the Band Variety Show.

The pulse of the band department is the Band Key Club, composed of members who have dedicated a year or more to the Trojan Band.

Glorious music captivates audience

MRS. DORA JANE ELLIS
Director and Vocalist

at Trojan Chorus Concert

As the curtains opened, the audience beheld a brilliant rainbow of color — 372 ravishing young ladies in pastel formals and 28 radiant young men in white dinner jackets. The stage was set for the magnificent annual Spring Concert.

The first half of the program consisted mainly of serious music, with religious overtones. After the traditional "Lord's Prayer," the Madrigal Singers made their debut, dressed in Elizabethan costumes and singing ballads from the Renaissance era. They captivated their audience with such delightful lyrics as "Sing We and Chant It," and ended the first half of the program on a very gay note.

Swinging into a livelier mood, they opened the second half with "Oklahoma." The Traveling Chorus then presented some excellent selections, including "Thoroughly Modern Millie." Ending the glorious night of music, was a beautifully inspiring salute to America.

NEW VOCAL GROUP, the Madrigal Singers, spend much time around the piano practicing their difficult harmony.

Traveling Chorus applauded by many audiences

Traveling Chorus, composed of forty-two Troubadours and twenty-eight Toreadors, gave several impressive performances this year both as a group and as individual components. High ratings were rewarded these outstanding vocalists.

A new group was presented this year. They are Madrigal Singers, and the music they sing dates back to the Renaissance. Not only their performances but also their dress was typical of the period.

NHS sponsors sale of Identification Cards

Scholarship . . . Leadership . . . Character . . . Service. These are the four qualities all National Honor Society members respect and possess. To qualify, juniors must have a 3.5 average; and seniors, a 3.2 average.

New members were ushered into this society of scholars by an impressive initiation. Parents were invited to witness this acknowledgment of the scholastic ability of their intelligent offspring.

This year, the National Honor Society sponsored the sale of Identification Cards to juniors and seniors. Another worthwhile project was the tutoring of classmates who had difficulties with certain subjects and were bent on improving their grades.

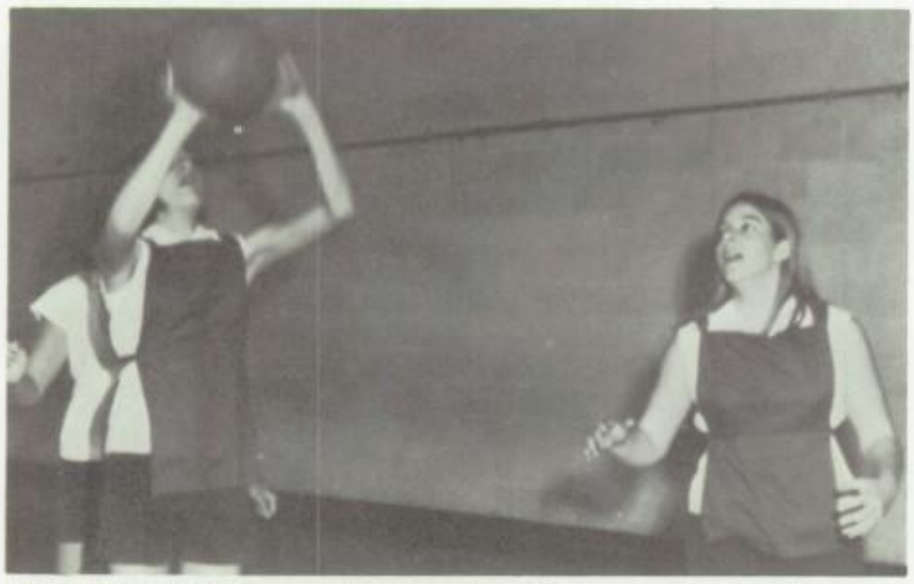
GRA girls get a kick out of physical recreation



JAN JOHNSON holds her breath while watching Beth Byerly attempt to sink a basket in the GRA basketball tournament.

The GRA, or Girls' Recreation Association, provides a marvelous opportunity for interested girls to participate in athletics. The sports the members took part in this year included basketball and volleyball. Winning teams were awarded trophies and other prizes.

A large number of girls were members of the association this year, the total being 160. The members divided themselves into twelve teams, one team for each school club represented in the organization.

Along with the desire to win, GRA members know the importance of exemplifying good sportsmanship. Each girl plays the games according to the rules and knows how to lose as well as win.

Recreation Association members have one goal in mind: to have fun through athletics. The girls accomplish this by participating to the fullest in their athletic activities and respecting the other teams' members.

Cheerleaders backbone of Trojan spirit

Hard work, long hours, and sore muscles are just half of the ingredients that make up a varsity cheerleader. The other half consists of enthusiasm, pep, and energy.

Trojan Cheerleaders led cheers at home games and pep rallies to stimulate enthusiasm and support for the Trojan football and basketball squads. At out-of-town games also, the cheerleaders encouraged the teams.

Besides being the backbone of Trojan Spirit, the cheerleaders had other projects. They organized pep rallies and sold Trojan booster ribbons on game days. During the summer, car washes helped to finance their activities.

AT A NOON PEP RALLY the cheerleaders display athletic prowess a bit different from that of the football players.

T-Steppers bring pageantry to football field

PEP ASSEMBLIES are enlivened by excellent T-Stepper routines.

"Tweet, tweet, tweet, tweet – Ready and pivot" was a command familiar to all T-Steppers. This, along with other commands, was used to create the intricate precision drills performed by the T-Steppers at football and basketball games, pep assemblies, and parades.

Besides marching, the T-Steppers helped boost spirit by making banners and posters. They were also in charge of the activities calendar in the front hall.

T-STEPPERS await the whistle that signals the beginning of another colorful half-time show on Rix Field.

Loyal Pep Club members promote school spirit

TIRED BUT STILL ZEALOUS Pep Squad girls gather their pompons after a spirited assembly.

Energetic is a mild word to use when describing this year's Pep Squad. Composed mostly of sophomores, the club attended all home games and several out-of-town ones. Performing at intervals throughout the games with pompon and glove routines, these girls added spirit and enthusiasm necessary to boost the teams to victory.

The girls usually performed to the music of the band. Their white gloves contrasted with the black uniforms made an impressive picture. Combining new motions with traditional ones, the routines were fast-moving and fun to watch.

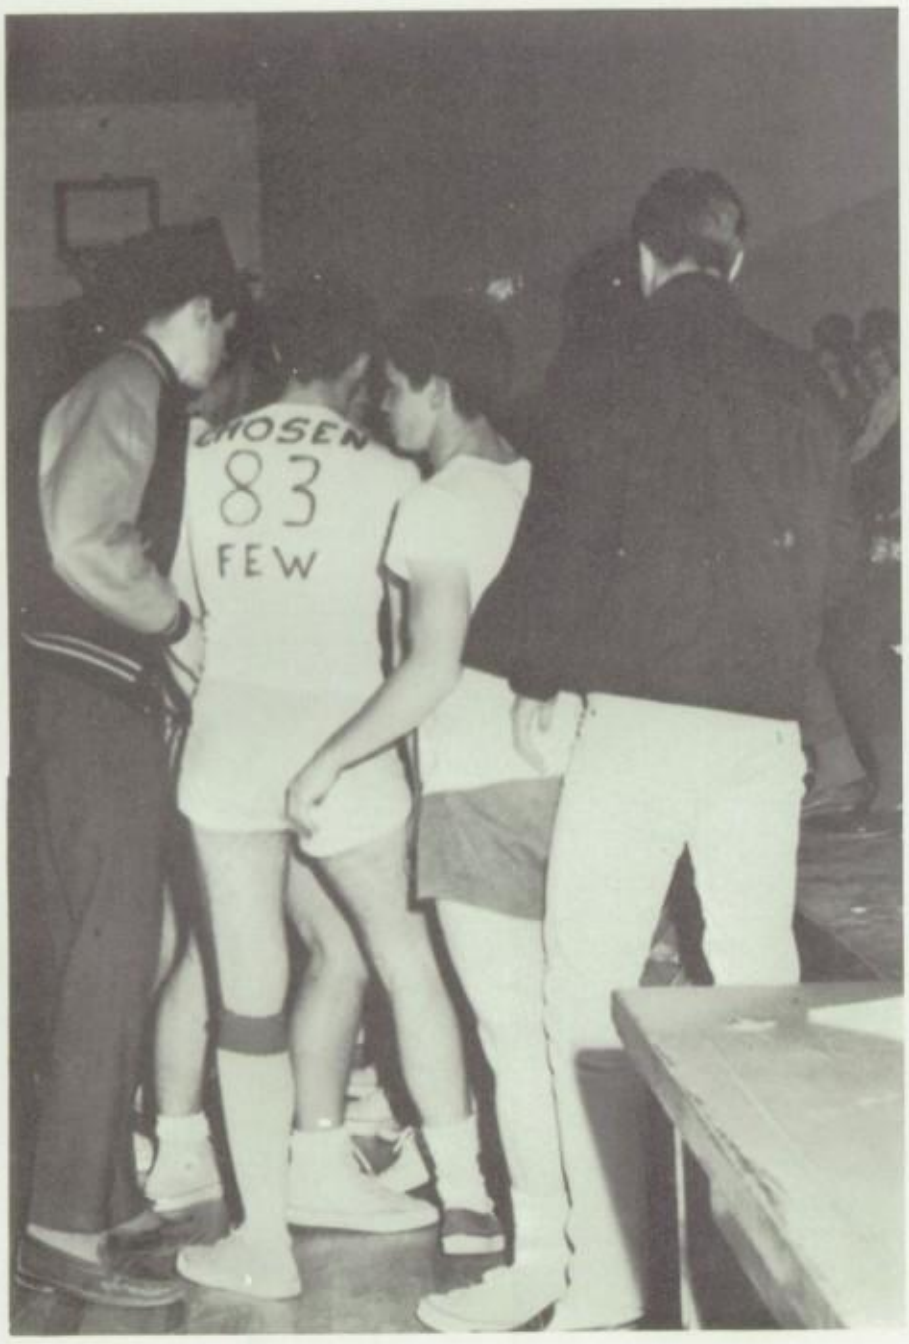
VITA Club challenges interested athletes



DURING HALFTIME, worried VITA boys plot to slow down the winning streak of their speedy teacher opponents in the Faculty-VITA basketball game.

Victory In Trojan Athletics, commonly referred to as the VITA Club, provides a real challenge for boys interested in all phases of athletics. These boys strive to achieve a higher academic and moral standard for the school. For membership each boy must complete one full season of either football, basketball, or track. Every member has taken an oath to promote and maintain good sportsmanship.

As in most organizations, VITA Club members pay dues. The money collected throughout the year is used to purchase sports equipment for the athletic department.

VITA Club is a comparatively new organization. Organized in 1965, the participating members have worked hard to maintain the group's reputation as a good club. Each member has met rigid requirements and has gained the respect of others through his efforts.

Deadline headaches pain TORCHLIGHT staff

EDITOR DOUG SZENHER and associate editor Sandy Pugh confer with sponsor Mrs. Angell on the make-up of the next edition.

Perseverance is a fine quality to possess, but it is a necessity for a school newspaper staff. This year's TORCHLIGHT staff certainly had this quality. They, though it was difficult sometimes, continued the tradition started some forty years ago by the first TORCHLIGHT staff.

Composed of nine students, all the staff worked selling advertisements and writing articles.

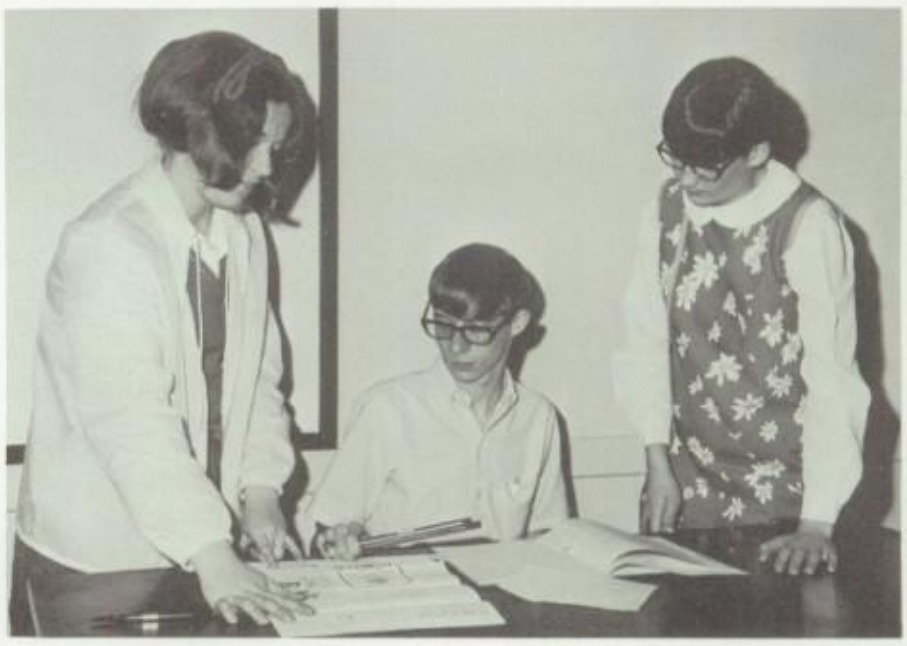
The paper was sponsored by a new addition to the faculty, Mrs. Angell. "The paper's biggest problem," she said, "was meeting the deadlines."

Editor for the paper was Doug Szenher. John Davis served as business manager. TORCHLIGHT this year participated in newspaper exchange. Cooperating with schools all over the United States, TORCHLIGHT was able to share and gain new ideas.

As any newspaper is a valuable asset for a school, TORCHLIGHT is for this one. It keeps the school torch burning.

LINDA BAKER and Becky Green carefully proofread Torchlight pages to catch typographical errors.

PAST EDITIONS of the Torchlight are filed by Carolyn Horton and Christy Corrado.



BUSINESS MANAGER John Davis plans the back page ad layout with Rose Meeks and Nancy Logan.

Students buy books for less on OGB Day

During the year the familiar sounds of typewriters, mental groans, and pencils scratching are heard in Room 302.

The OLD GOLD BOOK staff makes these sounds and finds the book to be a full-time job.

The staff is composed of two main groups, the editorial staff and the business staff. The business staff sells the books and makes the money to pay for them, while the editorial staff's job is to select a theme and execute it with pictures, write-ups, captions, and layouts.

The cooperation of all the members on the staff and the cooperation of the entire student body and faculty make the book an accurate and treasured record of the year.

ASSOCIATE EDITORS: Ann Latture, Patsy Hawthorn, Karen Haynes, Linda Agre.

OGB'S BIG THREE: Linda Grim, editor; Clay Farrar, business manager; Mrs. Housley, adviser.

Library Club promotes efficiency and cooperation

Library Club is not only an academic club, but also a service organization. Its members — the girls who act as librarians — are always on hand to help students and teachers alike. Books and magazines, which were not in their places moments before, have been known to mysteriously reappear with the aid of these girls. By helping others, they also help themselves. Through practical experience, Library Club members learn the principles of handling and running a library smoothly and efficiently. Cooperation and perserverance are the bywords of this organization.

Checking books and magazines in and out, filing cards, acquainting sophomores with the facilities, and helping the student body and faculty to locate books are the main duties of this troop of trusty girls. They also keep students informed of new books with the help of a cleverly arranged bulletin board. While they work, they are encouraged to think seriously of the possibility of library work as a career.

The Library Club is not all work, though. Through this organization, lasting friendships are formed between these girls and the student body and faculty.

BABETTE BARBER, library assistant, provides interesting material for the bulletin board.

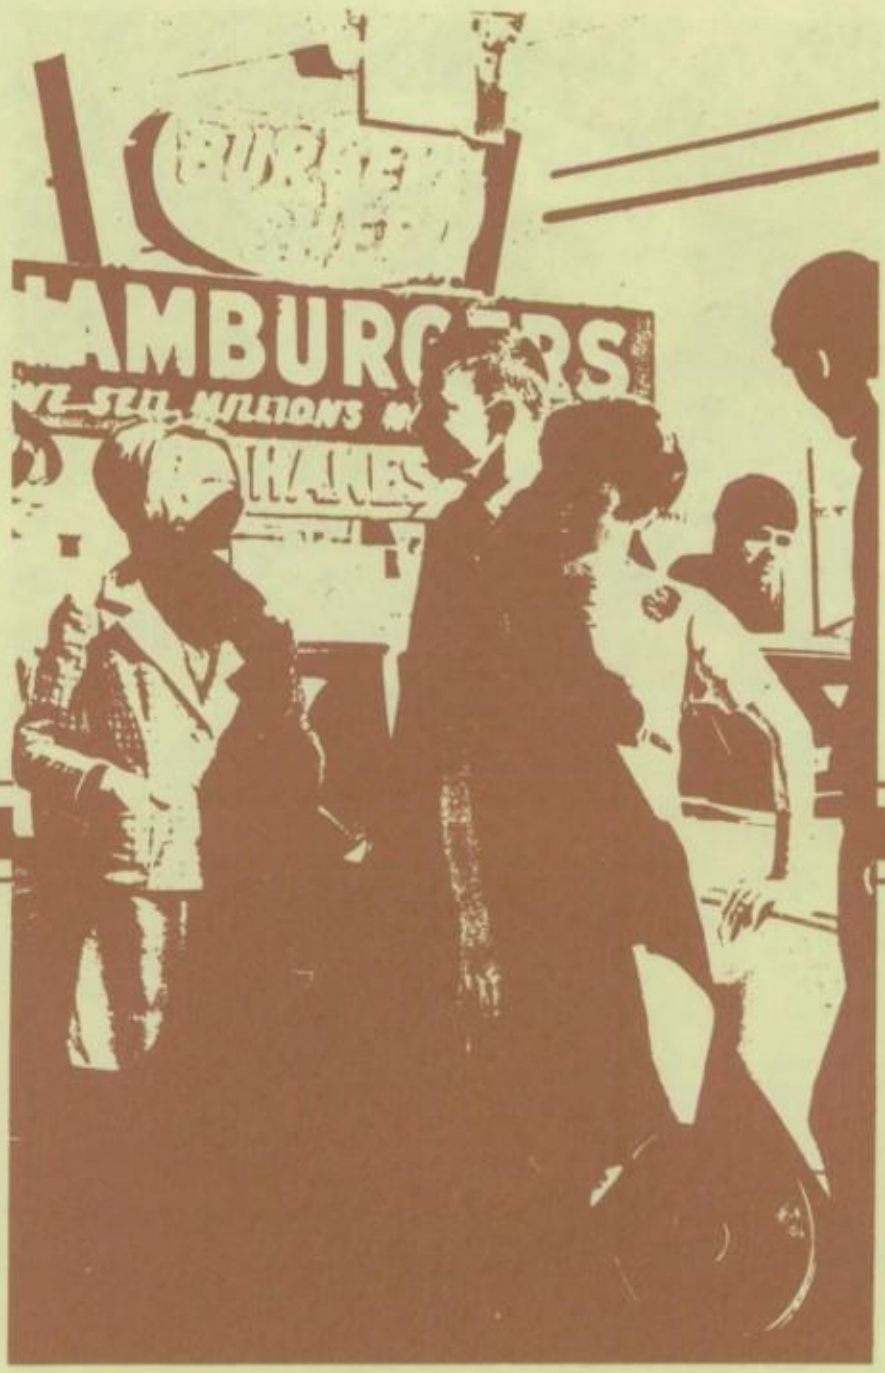
SEEKERS



Friendship is stimulated b

riosity . . .

The processes of making new friends and acquaintances and meeting new people are motivated by curiosity — curiosity about the ideas, goals, and needs of other human beings. The act of making friends may be compared to a scientific laboratory experiment. It must have certain materials, procedures, stimuli, and results. The materials are a cheerful smile and a friendly demeanor. The procedure is to want to have friends so strongly that they are placed before one's self. The stimulus is curiosity. The result, the most important and rewarding part of the experiment, is the attainment of lasting friendship.

Administration

In his hands a teacher holds the minds of many young people. He shapes them and molds them into maturity. He takes their natural curiosity and feeds it knowledge, to make it grow into wisdom.

A teacher tells his students about life, and makes his own an example to them. He shows them the way to a better life, and hopes they will follow his directions.

He uses discipline, but wisely, to prove that life has purpose, and is not easy always. He keeps his disposition calm, so he will not make rash judgments.

A teacher is always there to help, to listen to confidences, and to be a trusted friend.

Whether great or small, a teacher is a leader. Today he holds Tomorrow in his classes, building America's Future.

Superintendent and assistant direct schools

Dr. J. Harvey Walthall, superintendent of the Hot Springs public schools, is vitally interested in the progressive future of the city's educational system.

From his office in the Gorge, Dr. Walthall leads the administration in building a better educational program for the city. He advises the school board and executes its wishes, supervises the construction of new schools, and oversees financial transactions. At present, much of his time is spent in planning the new high school and in promoting a bond issue for a vocational-technical school.

As a well-rounded educator, Dr. Walthall is interested in his community. He is a Rotarian, and is an elder and Sunday school teacher in the First Christian Church. Once a week he also teaches a class at the Graduate Center of the University of Arkansas.

Working closely with Dr. Walthall is his personable, progressive assistant, Mr. Maurice Dunn, assistant superintendent for instruction and personnel. Mr. Dunn supervises personnel and programs of study for all the Hot Springs schools and is also currently arranging several new courses for the new high school.

With a combination of effort and talents, this team is constantly striving to meet the scholastic needs of an ever-growing community. The demands are great, but Dr. Walthall and Mr. Dunn meet them with progressive ideas and a willingness to work.

BOARD MEETING: Dr. Robert McCrary, secretary; Mrs. Harris Mackey; Dr. J. Harvey Walthall; Mr. Kenneth Wheatley, president; Mr. Dale Cook; Mr. Bill Randall; Mr. J. Harold Smith, vice-president.

Renovation current

Renovation of schools was one of the Hot Springs Board of Education's main projects this year. The opening of two new elementary schools and the completion of a new $2,000,000 high school were also included in the program. Plans are now being developed for future construction which will incorporate a vocational school and a modern athletic stadium.

The board works with a budget of approximately $2,650,000 a year, of which, 60 percent — or nearly $1,500,000 — is procured from local support. The other 40 percent is furnished by the state and other sources.

project of school board

Salaries for the many employees of the school system command 70 percent of the budget, while 30 percent is used for operational costs.

Meeting once monthly and when necessary in called sessions, the board seeks answers for the numerous problems confronting it.

Policy changes, decisions on teacher salaries, and determination of school opening and closing dates are some of the activities that the board undertakes.

The school board continually searches for new and better ideas for the advancement of education.

GUY E. ROBBINS
Business Manager

The Hot Springs Public School System is directed by many well-qualified people. Mr. Guy Robbins, the business manager, is in charge of all school moneys.

The Director of Federal Programs is Mr. Ralph Ford. His work includes directing Titles I and II of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act and Title III of the National Defense Education Act. He is in charge of the National Youth Corps and College-Work-Study Programs. Mr. Ron Courtney is in charge of pupil personnel services, which aid underprivileged children in the local schools. Mrs. Leona Doss supervises special instruction. Mrs. Georgia Buchanan is the health coordinator. As psychological evaluator, Mrs. Suzy Lewis works closely with Mrs. Myrna Glover, attendance case worker. Mrs. Betty Brown is the librarian for elementary schools.

Mr. Otis Blaylock supervises cafeteria operations, while Mr. Clyde Nance is superintendent of maintenance. Mr. James Cathcart is director of athletics.

Well-trained secretaries complete the efficient staff. The work of all of these people is necessary to keep the schools running smoothly.

Principal takes personal interest in students

WILLIAM C. MEARS
Principal

To the right of the main office is the principal's spacious office, occupied by Mr. William C. Mears.

Although the word Private on the outer door is a bit frightening, the inside door is usually open, and Mr. Mears welcomes all visitors with a smile and a friendly "Hello." Within Mr. Mears' office one finds an atmosphere of informal, but organized, industry.

As an experiment this year, Mr. Mears is exercising his theory of group dynamics by participating in informal college discussion conferences with students and guidance counselors. These conferences familiarize students with college courses and campus life.

Along with this load of school duties, Mr. Mears carries many civic duties. He is currently an active member of the Masonic Lodge, the Boys Club Board of Directors, and the Elks Association Board of Governors.

Mr. Mears is looking forward to the new high school as a challenge to the administration and the students. "Operating the new school smoothly will require much hard work," he says, "and there will be problems, but at least they will be new ones."

LOOKING OVER a student's records and planning his future are intensely interesting to Mr. Mears, who refuses to be isolated behind a desk in an office.

Assistant principal directs student activities

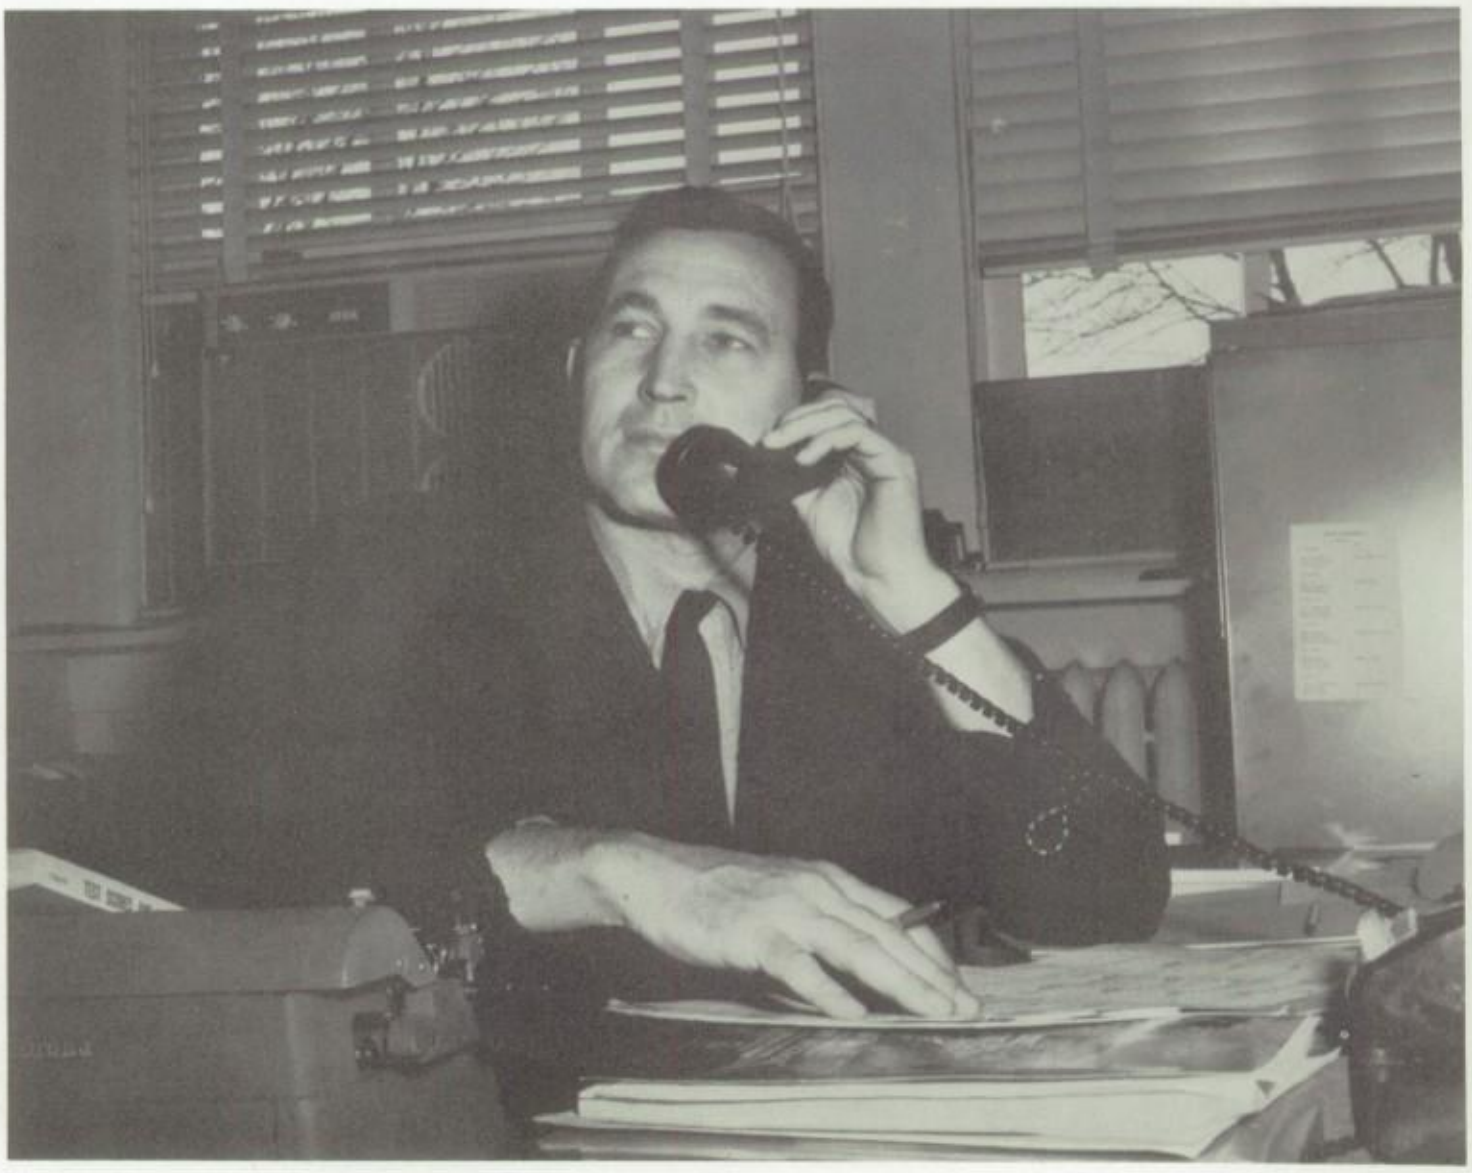
To the left of the main office is another room always filled with students. The sign on the door reads "Assistant Principal." Behind the small reception room is the office of Mr. Gordon Herrington.

For Mr. Herrington, there is no such thing as an ordinary day. Each day is filled with a new challenge. His time is spent on the telephone, in conference, on necessary paper work, or on the public address system. A noisy classroom had better beware of a voice booming across the intercom with, "Hey, can anybody hear me?"

Although this office is the center of his activity, Mr. Herrington by no means spends all of his time here. Students are accustomed to his sudden appearance in a classroom or his smiling observation in the hall.

Mr. Herrington exchanged his classroom for the assistant principal's office just this year, but he has already earned the respect and admiration of both the student body and the faculty. Indeed, he is a friend to all.

GORDON HERRINGTON
Assistant Principal



FOR CONTACTING parents and teachers, talking to students, and arranging dates for various student activities, Mr. Herrington finds the telephone an essential part of his everyday job.

Main office acts as control center for school

In spite of the apparent calm which pervades the school office, many complicated, but organized, activities are carried on by the efficient office personnel. Records must be kept accurately, grades recorded, absentees posted, and information given to numerous inquiring students. The checking in and out of students requires the careful attention of the staff. The constant trail to the office for pencils and change keeps the ladies busy.

Aiding the regular staff are many helpful assistants who act as receptionists and errand girls. They answer the phone, collect and post absentee slips, deliver messages, answer students' questions, and give other needed help. While assisting the regular staff, these girls receive valuable experience in office work.

The girls in the office at Lee take care of the necessary business there. They climb the "hill," running errands between Lee and high school. Recently the installation of an interoffice communication system has proved to be a timesaving device.

Counselors help students prepare for future

"The Freedom Shrine" reads the red sign, and the door below it leads to a benefit of America's freedom — the school's guidance office.

Two well-qualified counselors, Mrs. Irons and Mr. Fincher, spend their time helping students solve their present school problems and prepare for meaningful futures.

During the year the counselors give various mental maturity and achievement tests, such as the ITED given to juniors, and a battery of college entrance examinations to college-bound seniors.

For student use, the guidance office library is filled with catalogues of almost all American colleges. Also, a vocational file is available for students seeking knowledge of various careers.

Throughout the year, representatives of many colleges visit the school to talk to students interested in their institutions.

Nine girls serve as guidance assistants, devoting an hour of each day to helping the counselors. They deliver messages, run errands, help students in the office, and do any other job the counselors need done.

Teachers lead students in learning experience

This is the age of learning, of discovery. Youth of today are eager to meet the challenge and make new discoveries. It is the teacher's opportunity to take advantage of this eagerness and prepare students for tomorrow.

Because tomorrow is uncertain, a teacher must lend himself to change. He must be ready to defend his principles and account for his information. He must be dedicated to his job and dedicated to the purpose of serving. He must be a storehouse of knowledge and yet must accept new ideas. A teacher must be a friend to his pupils, but still must demand respect.

According to these qualifications, it can truly be said Hot Springs High instructors are teachers.

Local, state, national honors awarded teachers

Hot Springs High teachers participated in countless activities and have been recognized with many honors this year. Mr. Virgil Spurlin received from the Arkansas School Band and Orchestra Association a Distinguished Service Award for twenty years of dedicated service to his school and community, and was voted president-elect of the Arkansas Department of Classroom Teachers. Mrs. Arnold served as Hot Springs Classroom Teachers Association president.

Miss Litchfield was named in the top 10 percent of national alumnae of Alpha Xi Delta who have achieved success. Mrs. Buck is vice-president of the Arkansas Foreign Language Teacher Association and chairman of the international nominating committee of Delta Kappa Gamma, honorary society for women educators.

Although only a few of the honors and accomplishments of the teachers have been mentioned, each teacher is a special person with honors all his own.

Custodial staff regulates school maintenance

CAFETERIA STAFF includes Mrs. Exie Daniel, Mrs. Lowetta Harris, Mrs. Cecil Massey, Mrs. Bennie Lambert, and Mrs. Flora Henderson.

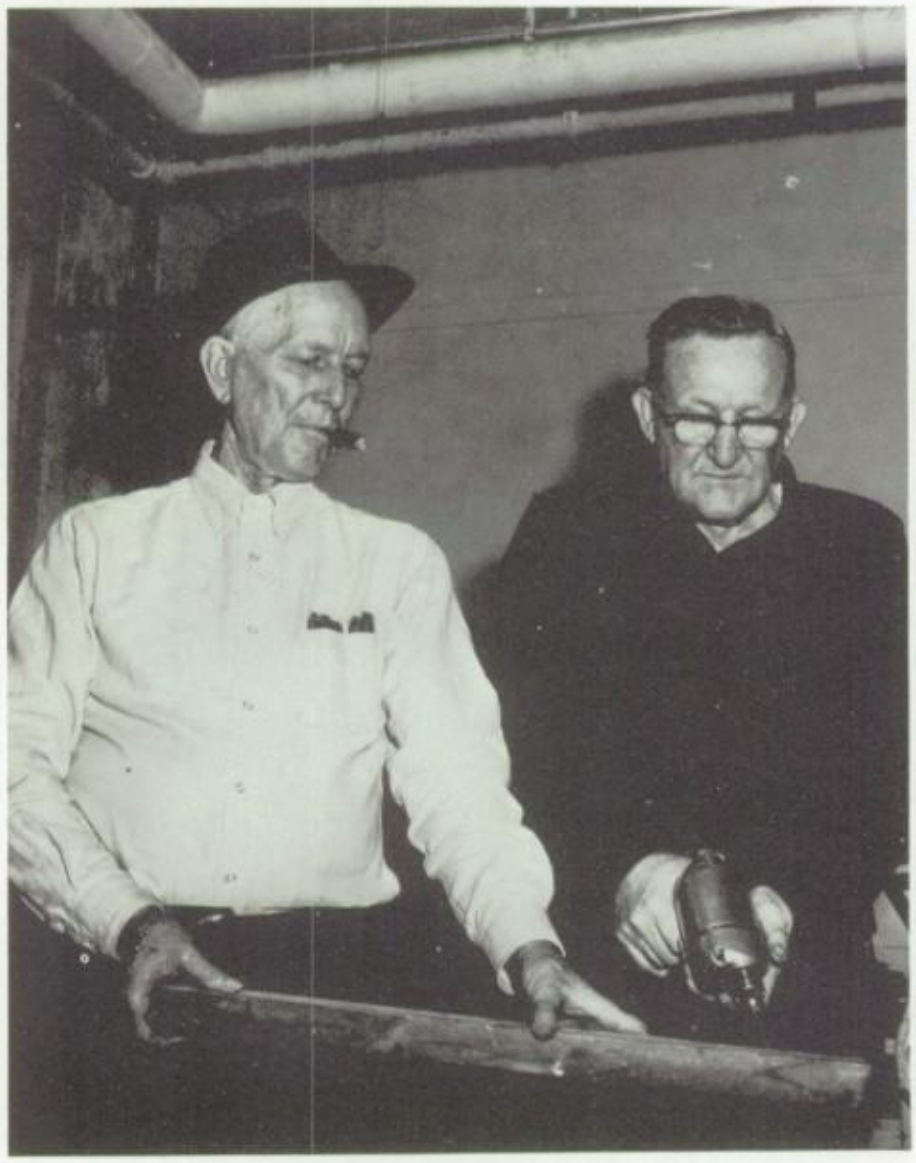
All students and teachers enjoy the benefits of clean rooms and hallways, but few appreciate the amount of work needed to keep the buildings clean.

An able staff of three maids — two at the main building and one at Lee — work industriously all day. Two of the most important people, other than teachers, employed by a school are its custodian and the night watchman. Mr. Haygood and Mr. Jennings fill these positions.

Just recently two painters have been employed to paint and repair all rooms for next year, when the building will be turned over to Central Junior High.

In the kitchens each day the cooks busy themselves preparing nutritious meals which hungry students will down in a matter of minutes.

MR. ELMER JENNINGS AND MR. GEORGE A. HAYGOOD head the maintenance department.



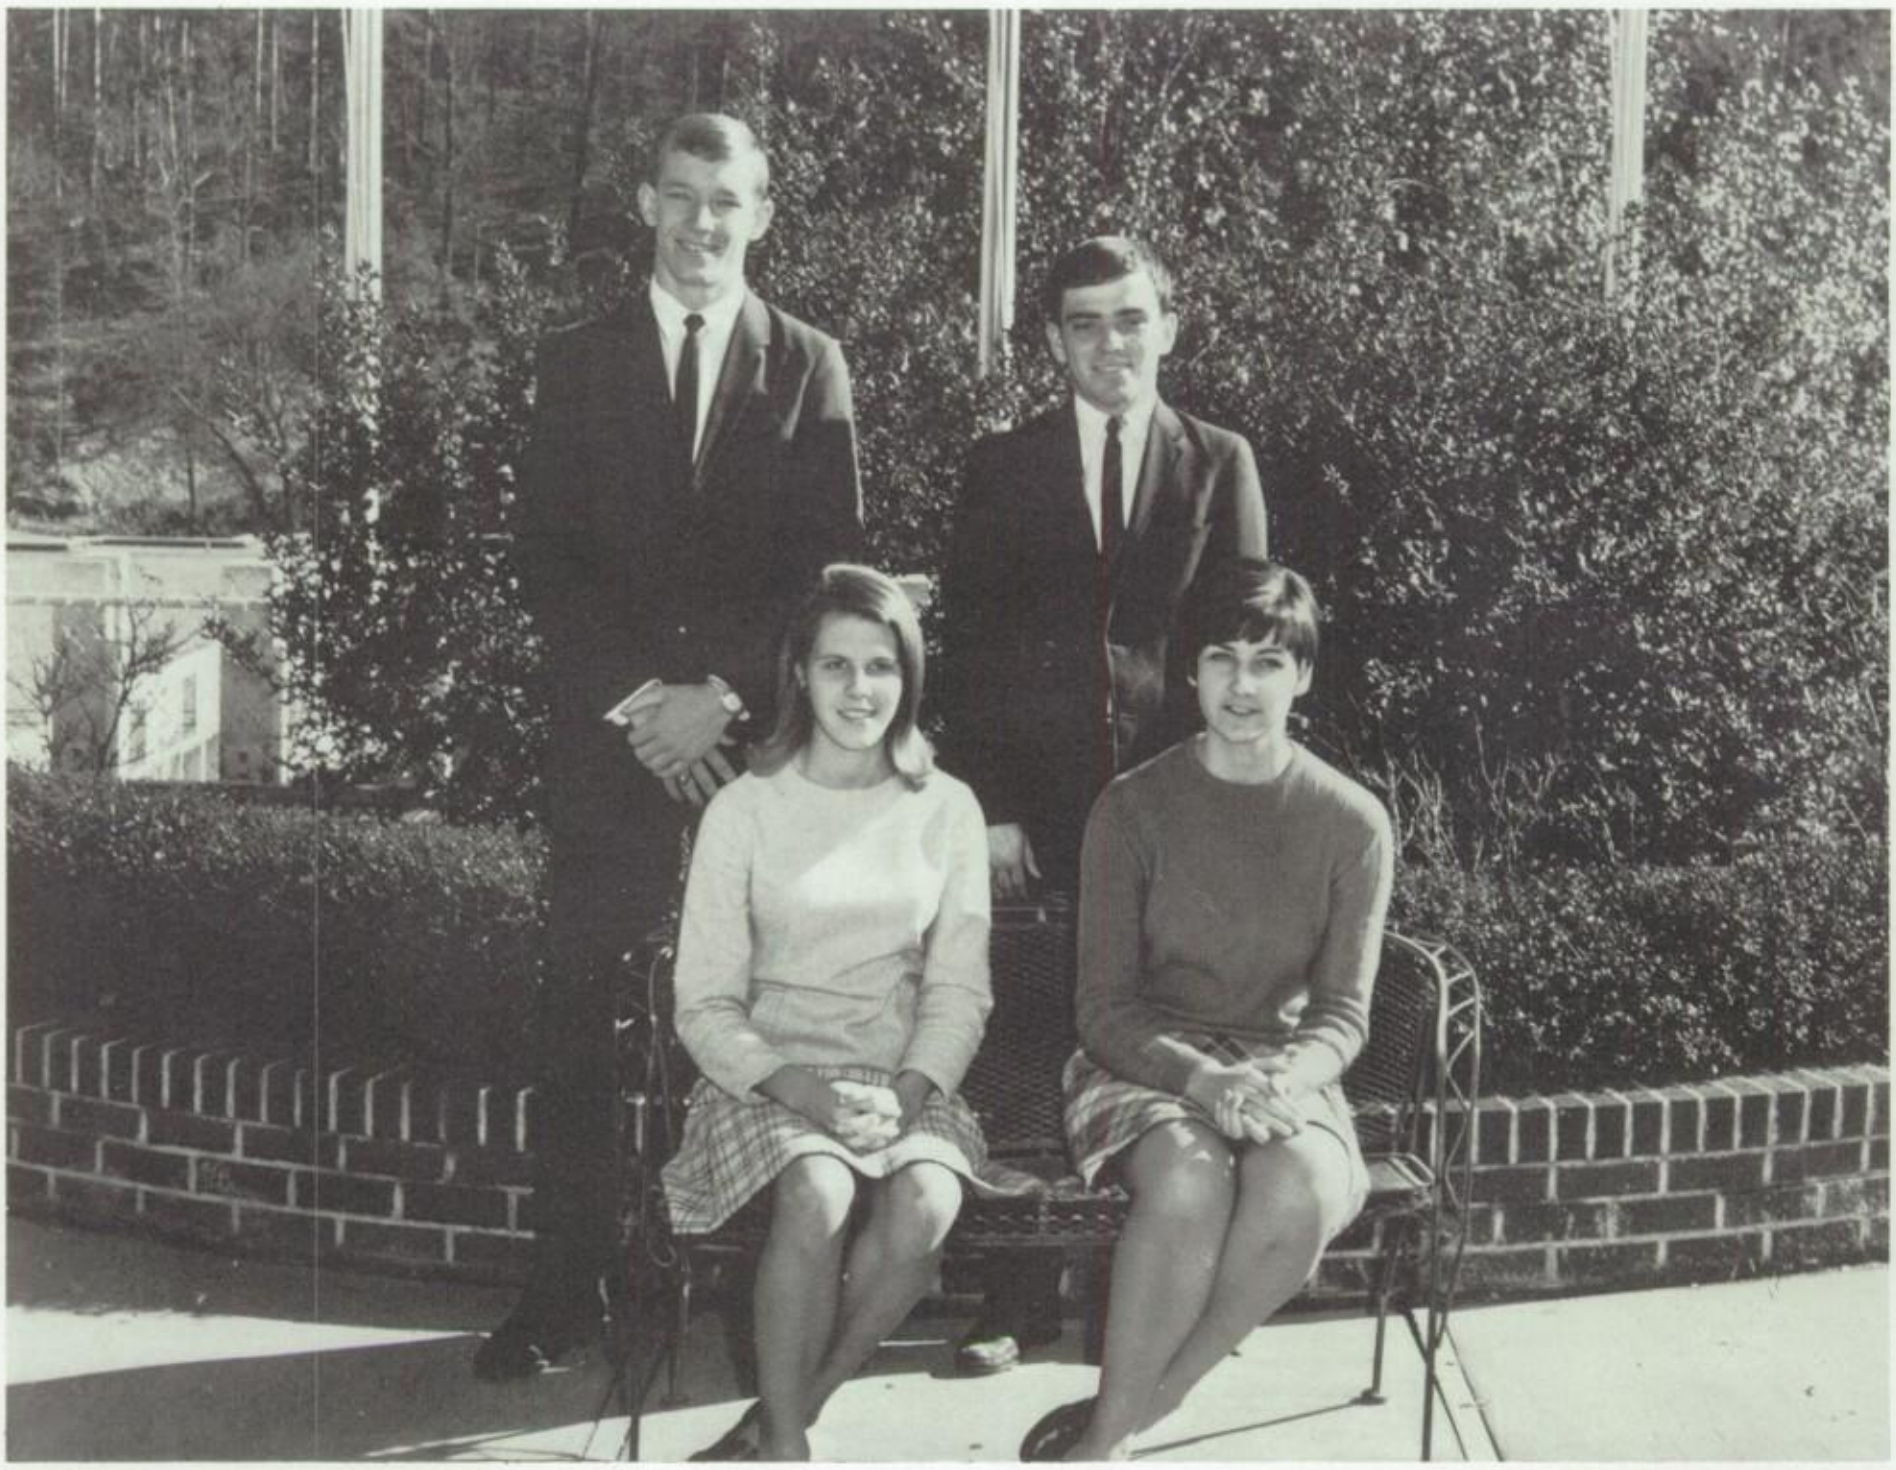
PAINTING THE SCHOOL ROOMS this year, were Mr. Edgar and Mr. Bert Dickson.

Students

A student's world is a young world, full of new life, new ideas, and new ways of doing things. It is a going world, with fast dances, racy cars, and moving action.

The young world is a new society, one of seekers hunting new answers for their new and old questions. They are students, exploring new horizons of knowledge.

On the pages beyond are portraits of the new society — students of HSHS. These students are asking the questions "What's with this world?" and "Does this young society have a place here?"



SENIOR OFFICERS: (seated) Melinda Koen, secretary; Joyce Schildgen, treasurer; (standing) Bill McBride, vice-president; Randy Cox, president.

Seniors

Suddenly those of us who had been sophomores only two brief years before were weighted down by senior rings on our fingers and new responsibilities on our shoulders. As seniors we filled positions of importance as we assumed the leadership of the clubs and organizations in our school.

Even though we shall no longer walk the halls at Oak and Orange, our memories will always trudge up and down the stairs of our alma mater. Some of our more pleasant recollections will surely be of those who made our class outstanding. Eleven senior Trojans in the uniform of the grid star led our formerly winless Trojan football team to a 2-9 season. One of our students was chosen to represent her school and her state at Girls Nation in Washington, D.C. Four others were National Merit Finalists. Another of our members was a contestant in the Miss Teen-age America Contest in Dallas, Texas.

We were honored to have the distinction of being the last class to graduate from our antiquated but cherished building. As we became aware of the reality of graduation, we began formulating our plans for our future, which would place us in a strange new world. We contemplated our future with bounding curiosity, molding it to fit our interests and capabilities.

Juniors

We juniors were an essential component in the framework of Hot Springs High School. We had progressed from our sophomore infancy to a new maturity in which we served our fellow students and expanded our level of knowledge.

We assumed a more active role in the organizations of our school. We were new arrivals in the various civic service clubs – Crown, Anchor, Nike Career, Key, and Interact. We filled positions of leadership and membership in other clubs, such as Beta Club, Les Elites, and the Hot Springs High School Historical Society.

Performing duties for our seniors was also one of our services. We ushered at the baccalaureate service and at graduation, and we served at the Senior Tea.

We look to our next year, our first and last in the new school, with keen anticipation. It has the possibility of yielding extraordinary adventures. Whether we accept the coming challenges and the year's potential for exploration is our choice.

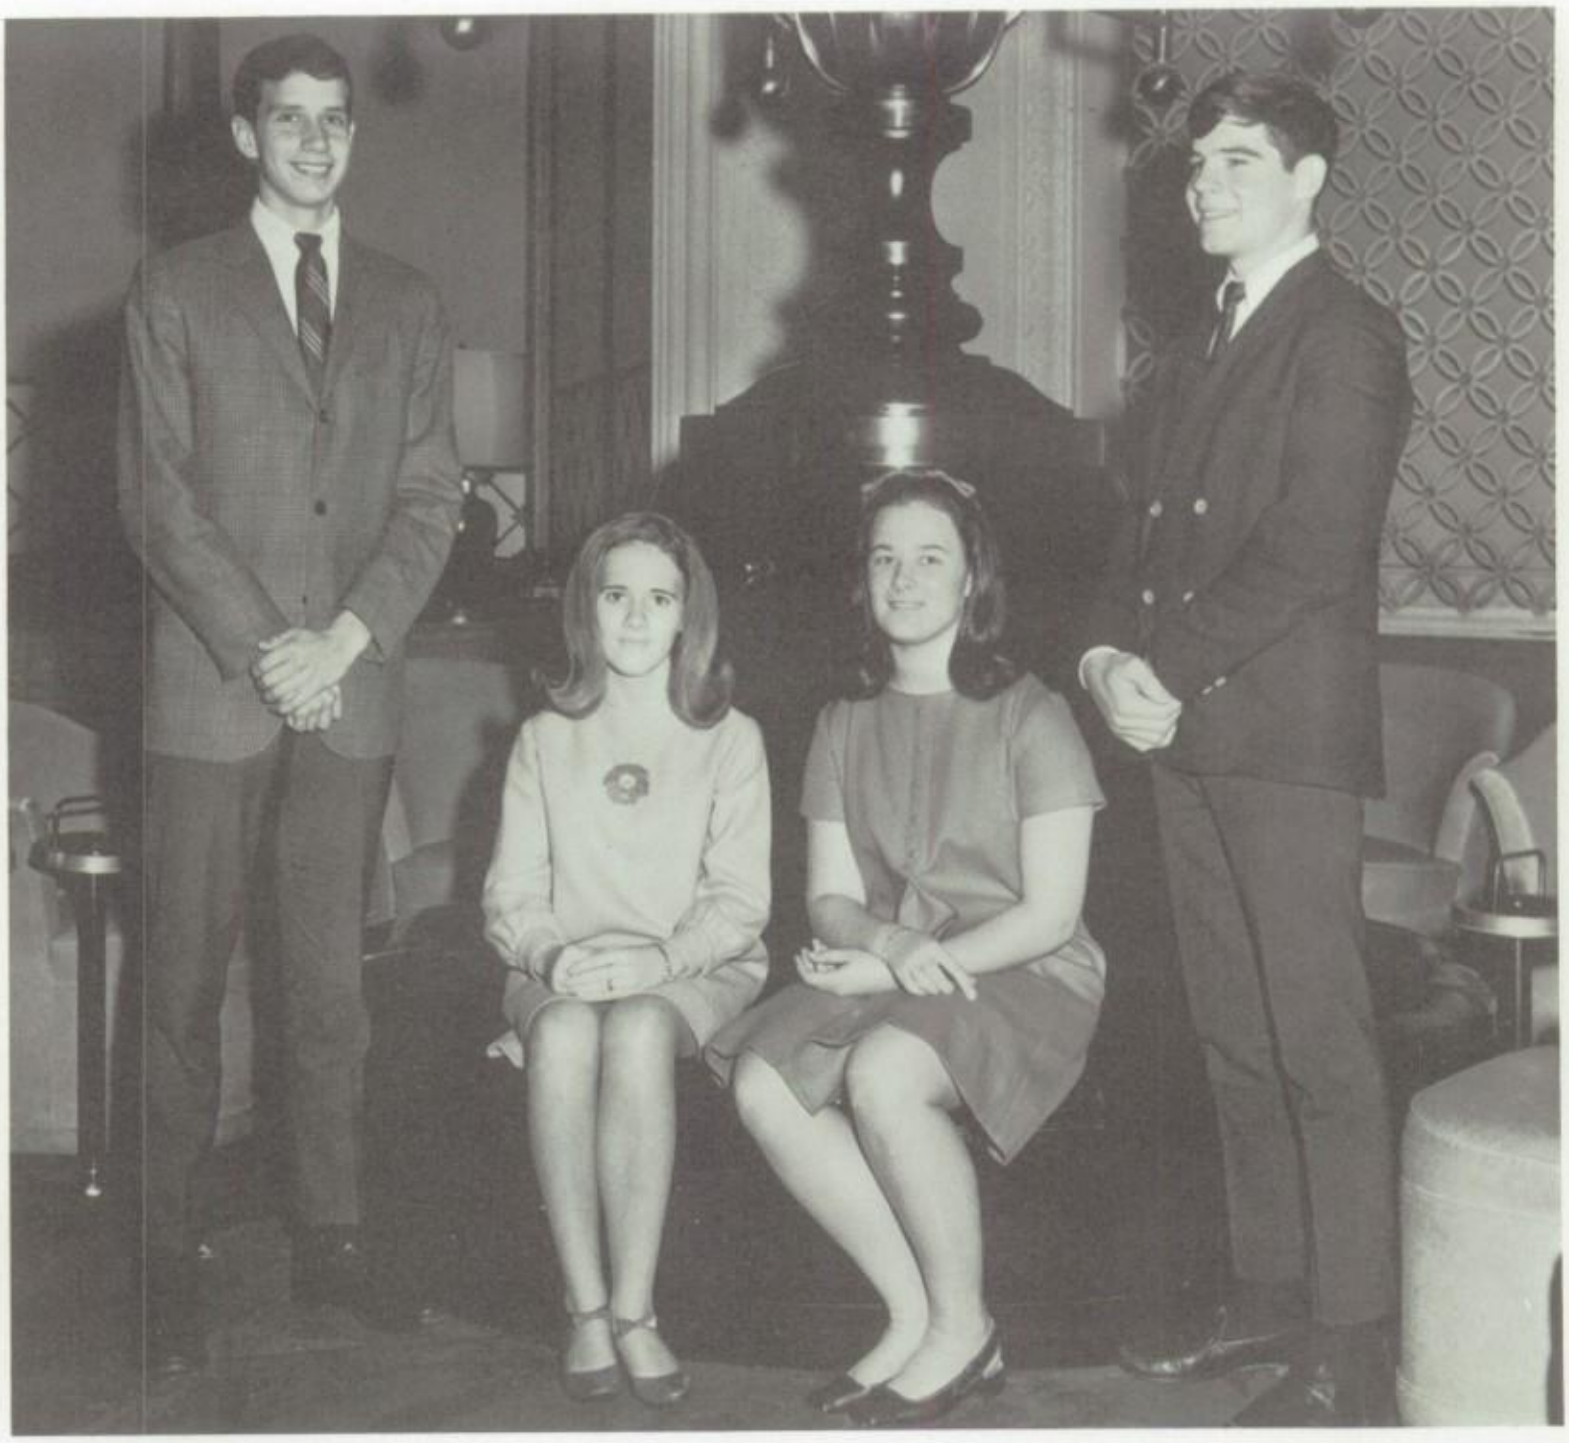
FOLLOWING A WEEK of midsemester tests, juniors tackle the required Iowa Tests of Educational Development.



SOPHOMORE CLASS OFFICERS: Bryant McCrary, president; Debbie Curl, treasurer; Mary Couch, secretary; Ronnie Young, vice-president.

We were the sophomores. We perhaps had the greatest curiosity of all. We were eager to see what new experiences awaited us in our first year at Hot Springs High.

Opportunities galore awaited us, and we took full advantage of them by joining clubs, such as JCL, Les Elites, Historical Society, and Thespians. We also actively participated in the Candlelight Service, Spring Concert, and the Band Variety Show.

Trojan Spirit was intensified with the help of the Pep Squad, composed mainly of sophomore girls. Many of the sophomore boys participated in Trojan athletics.

This year has been a rewarding one as far as we are concerned. We have learned to be intent students and to take pride in our school.

Students who missed individual pictures

STUDENTS WHO MISSED PICTURES: James Withrow, Dalton Daves, David Miles.

NEWCOMERS: Natalie Bryant, Billy Cash, Mary Mitchell, David Golden.

Curiosity, to achieve a worthwhile aim, must lead the individual to his destination.

It must enable him to find his own leprechaun or his own pot of gold.
If curiosity does not reach some end —
a new solution, discovery, friend, or happiness — then it has failed.
It has become useless and aimless nosiness.
Even when the goal is reached,
if curiosity does not urge the individual on to new discoveries, then it has again failed.
Curiosity must not be stable:
it must flow like an ocean current or soar like the swallow.

Its purpose is to lead the individual to seek and explore NEW HORIZONS.

Senior Honor Ads

Seniors are an important part of any school's life and liveliness. They form the compact core, or the solid-working backbone, of all clubs and activities. Since the clubs would like to honor these most important people, they have for that purpose dedicated the following pages of Senior Ads.

Hi,

Believe me, this is a wonderful page to write. There have been plenty of times when I thought we'd never get to the end of the 1968 OLD GOLD BOOK. Now that all the work is behind us, my only worry is how you will like it.

I'd like to thank everyone who made this year a little easier, funnier, and more meaningful: Mrs. Housley for all the hours and help she gave us; the staff for such efficient work and putting up with a grouchy editor; the faculty for co-operating so nicely; Mr. Wensel, Mr. Pack, and Mr. Davis for helping so much on picture days which were more fun than work; Mr. Tom Walker for his advice and patience in our many moments of indecision concerning type, cover, and other problems; and "motor-mouth" (eh, Karen?) and Mary for their open opposition to the theory that "silence is golden."

I hope that everyone will like this year's OGB. I also hope it will serve its purpose — to be a storehouse of memories of our life at HSHS and to urge everyone to think, question, and explore because, as Socrates said, "The unexamined life is not worth living."

Once again, thanks, and good luck to next year's editor. I hope she has as good a staff as I had.

LINDA

P.S. "OLD GOLD BOOK was enjoyed by all!"
